HUA IS PROCLAIMED CHAIRMAN OF PARTY AT RALLY IN PEKING

One Million March in the Capital to Celebrate His Promotion and the Fall of Leftists

By FOX BUTTERFIELD

HONG KONG Oct. 24-Hua Kuo-feng was acclaimed chairman of the Chinese Communist Party today at a vast rally of one million people to Peking that came after six weeks of bitter political conflict following the death of Mao Tse-tung.

The rally, which was televised live hroughout China, celebrated Mr. Hua's elevation to the job as chairman, succeeding Mao, and the downfall of the country's four senior leftists, including Mao's wife, Chiang Ching. A year ago, Mr. Hua was an obscure career party administrator whose name was virtually unknown to most Chinese.

Mr. Hua, looking relaxed and confident today waved jubilantly to the enormous crowd from the red walls of the Tien An Men, or Gate of Heavenly Peace. Only a little over a month ago, Miss Chiang and the three other leftists, who all are reportedly now under arrest, had stood together with Mr. Hua at the same spo to mourn Mao.

Hna Appears in Uniform

In an apparent tribute to the important role of China's armed forces in the ouster of the leftists, Mr. Hus wore the green uniform of the People's Liberation Army It was the first time he bad appeared io public in army uniform.

In addition to Mr. Hua, six of the 11 other Politburo members who took part in the rally were dressed in army uniform, and many army officers and soldiers could be seen on the reviewing stand atop the Tien An Men.

Except for the four missing leftists, the other Politburo members appeared in their old party rank, suggesting that no formal decision had yet been reached to revise the leadership, apart from Mr. Hua's elevation.

The Chinese press agency, Hsinhua, said in a report on the rally that Mr. Hua still held the post of Prime Minister, or bead of the Government, as well as his new positions as chairman of tha party and head of the Military Commission. There had been speculation that Mr. Hua

FORD'S FINAL DRIVE REFLECTS OPTIMISM

President, in California, Invites Crowds to His Inauguration

FOUNTAIN VALLEY, Calif., Oct. 24-President Ford invited more than 25,000 Californians here today to attend the inaugural ceremonies in Washington next Jan. 20. The invitation ecboed one be issued yesterday, telling audiences in three Southern states, "Y'all come."

With a week of campaigning yet to come before tha Nov. 2 election, the invitations may bave seemed somewhat presumptuous. But they reflected the final phase of the Ford candidacy, a phase stressing positive themes, buoyant optimism and, so far as the President's role is concerned, disregard of Jimmy Carter's challenge.

Ever since Mr. Ford and Mr. Carter pledged Friday night in their third and last televised debate that they would abandon their harsh attacks on each other, the President bas virtually ignored the Democratic nominee's campaign.

Prayers in Spanish Are Recited As Families Identify Their Dead

"Ay, Dios mio!" "Ay, Dios mio!" The pregnant woman kept repeating her wall in Spanish. "Oh, my God!" Then a prayer and words directed at anyone who would listen: "God, she was a saint. My little girl was a saint to me. Don't tell me that you have taken her away. I don't want to hear it! No, 1 don't want to hear it!"

But her daughter, Ana Yvette Colon, 16, was dead. Yesterday, the walling and the sobbing, along with the despair and confusion, permeated the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner at 520 First Avenue.

In slow, hesitant streams, brothers and sisters, cousins and in-laws, friends and neighbors came, to identify or locate the victims or the missing of the Bronx blaze that left 16 women and nine men dead earlier that morning. Most of the victims were too young to know that life could so quickly vanish. but the pain of this discovery was left for tha living.

Multiple grief struck many families. Moises Hostos, 17, sat quietly in a chair absorbing his share. He had lost one sister and five cousins; two brothers and one sister-in-law were seriously injured.

"There was another case involving three sisters," he said. He knew some loved ones were probable victims. Other people felt the additional pain of uncertainty.

"What kind of shoes was she wearing? How tall was she? Did she have any distinguishing marks? What was the color of her hair?" In a conference room with a long brown desk, a woman police officer from the missing-persons squad asked the questions again

ARSONIST BEING SOUGHT

Patron Ejected Earlier Said to Have Set Blaze-Victims Found Near Front Windows

By ROBERT McG. THOMAS Jr.

Fire swept through a Bronx social club early yesterday morning, killing 25 young party-goers and injuring 24 others who leaped from a second-floor window-the sole means of escape from the blaze that had apparently been set in the building's only staircase by an angry patron.

The death toll of 16 women and nine men in the blaze, which broke out shortly after 2:30 A.M. in the Puerto Rican Social Club at 1003 Morris Avenue at East 165th Street, was the highest in a building fire here since 1958, when 27 died as a result of a fire at a textile factory at 623 Broadway.

Survivors Forced to Jump

So swiftly did the blaze spread through the 25-foot by 50-foot dance hall, according to survivors, that there was no time for all to escape. Most of the bodies were found stacked up near the broad front windows, where the victims died of asphyxiation before they could reach the opening.

The survivors had been forced to jump, fire officials said, because a fire escape extending a short distance along one end of the window ledge was blocked by a rolling steel door, apparently installed to prevent burglaries.

"Something just went 'boom' and the fire came real fast," 21-year-old Marilyn Crespo said from her bed in the emergency room at Lincoln Hospital, where she and her busband, Jimmy, 22, were taken after they leaped to safety.

Beame Visits Hospital

Tha injured were taken to five hospitals in the Bronx and Manhattan and to the Nassan County Medical Ceoter in East Meadow. All suffered burns and several had broken limbs and internal injuries, spokesman for the hospitals said.

Mayor Beame, who visited the scene in the Morrisania section at 5:30 in the morning and then went with Fire Commissioner John T. O'Hagan to visit the injured at Lincoln Hospital, called the fire a "tragedy," and said be had asked for a full report on the various investigations,

Drug Traffic Turns Colombian Coast Into Zone of Tel

By JUAN de ONIS Special to The New York Times

RICHACHA, Colombia, Oct. 20-Vast drug smuggling has turned the Atlantic coast of Colombia into a terrorized region of criminal organizations, violent Indians and corrupt officials. The law is weak, and life is cheap.

The Colombian authorities and United States narcotics agents are attempting to stem the torrent of cocaine and marijuana flowing through ports and airstrips to the United States and Europe but are cutting off less toan 10 percent of the estimated traffic.

The criminal organizations are more advanced technically and far richer than the law-enforcement agencies. Through intimidation and payoffs, the prosecution of large ringleaders has been blocked in

There is a serious problem, however, in finding judges and prosecutors who will bandle such cases. The criminal organizations have not hesitated to kill officials involved in investigations.

When the Colombian naval training schooner, the Gloria, went to New York for the tall ships regatta on July 4, a search uncovered 30 kilos of cocaine aboard. A naval lieutenant and several crew members were arrested and sent back to Colombia for trial.

This, shipment was almost certainly destined for one of the many clandestine laboratories in Colombia, which is now the center of cocaine processing in South America, But the coca platt that provides the raw material is still grown primarily in Peru and Bolivia by Indian peasants.

The Atlantic coast, from the banana plantations at Uraba near the Panamanian isthmus to the parched Guajira peninsula that juts eastward from here, offers 500 miles of ports, coves, deserted beaches and natural airstrips for the smugglers.

This was the coast from which privateers attacked the Spanish galleons carry-ing treasures from the colonies, and the great fort city of Cartageoa, 250 miles west of here, was built to control the

Now the smugglers have more sophisticated means of avoiding control, and they are evidently prepared to absorb some financial setbacks in confiscations because they are more than offset by the

on Oct. 6, a lone pilot banked his twin-engine airplana through the white cloud puffs over the Caribbean, turning suddenly dark at dusk. He spotted the lighted tower of an oil drilling rig as a landmark on the coast and glided to a landing on a dirt strip flanked by bonfires.

From the nearby village called El Pájaro emerged a group of Guajiro Indians, some armed with submachine guns, to stand guard while a drug runner delivered 12 kilos of cocaine, worth $1 million in the United States, for the plane's return flight.

Normally, the plane would arrive and leave undetected, but in this case the army unit here was alarted. Troops and policemen, supported by a helicopter, got to the airstrip and in the shooting that broke out the plane's tires were shot out

Police sources said the pilot and the smuggler got away, but along with the plane, the soldiers reportedly seized the cocaine, a suitcase full of United States dollars and a flight plan with a destination in South Carolina.

According to diplomatic sources, many Spanish officials still resent President Echeverria's proposal that the United Nations suspend Spain from membership for the axecution of five Basque terrorists in September 1975, just two months be-fore the death of Generalissimo Francisco

But Mr. López Portilin, who traces his family back 400 years to a Navarre vil-lage in northern Spain, is expected to recognize Juan Carlos's regime as one of his first acts of government, perhaps even this December.

Strong, Contradictory Sentiments For Mexico, which for three centuries was Spain's targest and weathlest colony in the New World, the idea of relations

For a country whose population is almost entirely mestizo, or of mixed Spanisb and Indian blood, feelings toward Spain today also have their roots in the period of the conquest 450 years ago. cach Mexican is part-Conquistador and part-defeated and his emotions towards Spain are therefore both of attraction and

The reason offered in Mexico for the delay in the resumption of formal ties between the two countries, however, is that the democratic process in Spain is insufficiently advanced to justify a reversal of Mexico's traditional posture.

But diplomatic sources believe this is merely an excuse given in disguise Spain's refusal to deal officially with resident Echeverria.

some hope for the same sort of transition that prevailed here.

Like the Rhodesiao guerrillas, the Mau Mau fought a war of terror against white domination, though they did not have foreign backing so they had to make or steal their weapons. Again like the Rhodesian guerrillas, the Mau Mau took heavy losses at the hands of white-led forces. Despite the inflamed reports of Mau Mau barbarism that spread beyond Africa, the death toll of whites during what was called the emergency was 32; the number of whites killed in the four-year Rhodesian conflict is about twice that. As in Rhodesia the leaders of the rebellion, not least Jomo Kenyatta, now the revered President of Kenya, spent many years in prison. With independence in 1963 the possibility of recriminations against whites was coosiderable. Instead, the direction taken was pretty much set by the title of one of Mr. Kenyatta's books, "Suffering Without Bitterness."

All residents of the country—there was a substantial community of people of Indian descent among the blacks and whites-were given the chance of becoming citizens. (Some whites and many Asians declined, preferring to retain British Commonwealth passports.) White planters were eocouraged to sell their vast holdings to blacks at fair market prices. Some 1,400 white families sold more than two million acres in a program financed by British grants and loans totaling $50 million

In all, 15,000 of the 55,000 whites who lived here before independence left work for foreigo businesses, teach or are involved with international agencies. Others, like the lewyer, adopted Kenyan citizenship. Some of the old planter families have invested: here and control hotels, touring companies, manufacturing plants and import and export concerns.

An Echo of Mamaroneck

The whites live well; there are no poor whites in Kenya. There are fewerprivate swimming pools and teonis courts here than in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, but judging by housing and amenities, the standard of living for whites throughout the country seems about the same as io Mamaroneck or Cos Cob.

Most black politicians egree, at least privately, that the whites presence has benefited the country as a whole. The theory invoked is that whites, with their education and administrative and technological skills and, perhaps most important, with their links to overseas investment sources, have beloed consolidate and increase the country's capital and that the effects are increasingly sifting down to ordinary people in the form of jobs, education and busi-ness opportunities.

Some maintain that the rate at which the benefits are trickling down is too slow. They point to the squalid slums growlog on the outskirts of Nairobi, to a minimum wage of $35 a month for servants and to growing unemployment. But advocates of the Kenyan model defy its critics to name another bleck-governed African country where there is so large and prosperous a bleck middle class, where schools, hospitals, traffic and telephones function as efficiently, where there exists a press inde-pendent of government control.

Can this pattern apply in a blackgoverned Rhodesie? In terms of minerals and agriculture, Rhodesia is far imilisters of most or the major Arab countries today approved the creation of a multinational Arab peacekeeping force of 30,000 troops to be sent to Lebanon.

But the ministers, representing more than a majority of the 21-member Arab League, passed the potentially-controversial task of deciding the composition of the force on to the conference of Arab beads of state that is to begin later today.

heads of state that is to begin later today.

As the ministers had not amnounced before their meeting what they expected to achieve, it was unclear whether they had tried and failed to agree on which countries would provide troops for the force, or whether their only purpose was to agree generally and pass the matter to the full conference.

Another controversial aspect of inter-Anab relations was reportedly avoided by the ministers when they deferred a motion hy fraqi representatives to dis-cuss Syria's military intervention in Leb-anon. In addition, the ministers and the heads of state were to work out a schedule for the withdrawal of the Lebanese and Palestinian forces to positions they held before the start of the civil war in April 1078.

At today's conference, Egypt, Syria and Lebanon will be represented by Presi-dents Anwar el-Sadat, Hafez al-Assad and Elias Sarkis. The Palestine Liberation Organization will be represented by Yasir Arafat, its executive committee chairman.

Discovery of an Ancient City In Syria Called 'Sensational'

By ALVIN SHUSTER of to The New York Three

ROME, Oct. 24-Talian archeologists; who have been working at a site in northern Syria for more than ten years, are now convioced that they have made a "sensational discovery" of an ancient kingdom that flourished as an important cultural and commercial ceoter more than 4,300 years ago.

Their work was carried out at Ebla, just south of the modern city of Aleppo-Their breakthrough came last fall when they found 15,000 tablets in the archives chamber of the royal palace of the old kingdom and theo began to decipher the cuneiform acript that they said had oot previously been seen.

There were many akeptics at first," said Paolo Matthiae, the 36-year-old leader of the team and Professor of Near East Archeology of the University of Rome, "Now I think the discoveries are being generally accepted for what they are evidence of the existence of a new world, one that rivaled the ancient kingdoms of Egypt and Mesopotamia."

Mr. Matthiae and a colleague, Giovanni Pettinato, a 42-year-old Professor of Assyriology and a language expert, are one preparing documents and packing pictures for a trip to the United States this week to lecture on their discoveries. They will be addressing archeologists and bis-torians at meetings to St. Louis and later at Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Johns Hop-kins, and the Universities of Michigan

New Book Says Lenin Spared Czar's Wife and Da

By BERNARD WEINRAUB

LONDON, Oct. 22-What happened to the Russian imperial family on the night of July 16, 1918? Were Czar Nicholas II. his son, his wife and four daughters massacred by the Bolsheviks in a cellar at Ekaterinburg in the Urals? Or did some members of the family disappear and live for months, perhaps years, after their

The fate of the imperial family—one of history's riddles—has abruptly emerged as a source of new controversy with the publication of a widely-praised best seller by two investigative journalists who have uncovered evidence that demolishes the massacre theory and indicates that the Czarina and her four daughters lived months after the date of the alleged

The book, "The File on the Tsar," which is scheduled for publication in the United States by Harper and Row this month. is written by Anthony Summers and Tom Mangold, journalists with the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Origina Dossier Unearthed

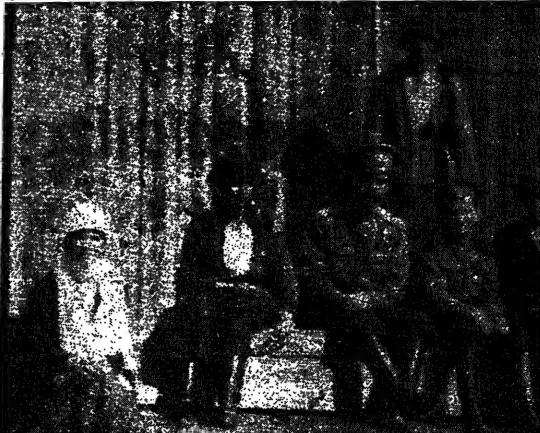

Perhaps the most significant facet of the book is the discovery by the authors, through a combination of luck and detective work, of a seven-volume dossier, collated by a monarchist official, of an investigation into the massacre. The dossier, which included original attidavits and police reports in Russian typescript, was found in a vault at the Houghton Library at Harvard.

"Inside the dossier," the authors say, was detailed evidence, as compelling as any that exists for the massacre version, which shows that most of the Romanov family were alive for many months after their historical deaths."

The authors argue that Lenin probably made the decision to have the Czar and his young son executed at about the accepted date but that the Czarina and her four daughters were secretly moved to Perm, 200 miles northwest of Ekaterinburg, with the Bolsheviks hoping to exchange them for prominent revolutionaries imprisoned in Germany.

More important, the authors say, Lenio was prepared to barter the German-born Czarina and her four daughters for Ger-man good will. Negotiating with the Kaiser, Lenin may have promoted the ontion among his followers that the famof the civil war and avoiding the fury of militant Bolsheviks who insisted that they all be liquidated. The authors, who worked five years oo

the book, substantlate their arguments with the publication of depositions found in the Houghtoo Library, interviews, documents found in German, British and American archives, and the uncovering of evidence that the first official White Russian investigations of the imperial family's fate found no evidence that the

The study, based on a comparison of the radiation exposures experienced by workers et the Federal nuclear facility at Hanford, Wash., and their cause of death, is highly technical and involves complex statistical methods. It was done by Dr. Thomas F. Mancuso of the Univer-sity of Pittsburgh; Dr. Alice Stewart, a British physician and epidemeologist with a worldwide reputation, and George

Critical of Nuclear Power

Dr. Arthur Tamplin and Dr. Thomas . Cochran, radiation experts on the staff of the Natural Resources Defense Council, said that their reading of the statistical tables of the Mancuso-Stewart study sug-gested that a worker assigned to an atomic reactor for three years increased his chance of dying of cancer by 18 percent and one who worked in a reactor or similar environment for 16 years would dou-ble his chance of dying of cancer.

Mr. Tamplin, a biophysicist, and Mr. Cochran, a nuclear physicist, are highly critical of nuclear power. They said that be interpreted as showing that the existradiation exposures now being experienced at nuclear power reactors, "each year of plant operation will, on the average, ultimately cause three to four workers to die of cancer."

The Mancuso-Stewart study itself did not attempt to make such projections. The findings of the Mancuso-Stewart study appeared to parallel the findings of a somewhat different study completed in 1974 hy Dr. Sam Milham, then at the University of Washington, of the cause of death by occupation of 310,000 workers who died in the atate between 1960 and 1971. Dr. Donald R. Griffin proposes that animals may have the capacity to plan and make choices. Chimpanzees, for example, have been taught to communicate with specific patterns to convey information to each other; bower birds decorate mating areas with bright objects.

New Books Suggest That Animals May Be Self-Aware

By BAYARD WEBSTER

When a lioness stalks an impala preparatory to gilling it, is she planning ahead, like a woman shopping for groceries for tomorrow's dinner, or is she merely responding to hunger pangs?

When hirds call or sing, are they using language to communicate in some detail with their owo kind, or are they merely instinctively vocalizing in response to external events? When a chimpanzee puts together previously learned sign-language symbols in new contexts to "talk" with its human cousins, is it undergoing a relatively sophisticated mental experience, or is it only exercising a set of limited response that it was born with?

The possibility that the first example in each case may be the right one—meaning. in effect, that animals may have the capacity to plan, to make choices and to be aware of themselves and their environment—hes been raised by a hiologist at Rockefeller University.

The hiologist, Dr. Donald R. Griffin, proposes such a provocative hypothesis in his book, "The Question of Animal

Dr. Griffin, a Rockefeller University professor, is the former bead of Harvard's department of biology and is internationally known among scientists for his re-search on bat orientation and bird nava-

Dr. Griffin is quick to note that his suggestion does not imply that all animals necessarily have sophisticated intellectual qualities similar to man's. But he argues that research to date on animal behavior has given no indication that animals do not have such qualities in some degree. And he proposes that research degree. And he proposes that research into the nature and depth of animal intel-ligence be given a higher priority by animal hehaviorists.

Dr. Griffin's hypothesis is that animals may have the quality of ewareness, im-plying the ability to interpertt and act on situations, rather than just to be conscious of them. His book, expounding on this theory, is expected to become a subject of cootroversy among animal behaviorists because it runs counter to the traditional opinions beld hy many such researchers.

Lack Ability to Generalize

Most ethologists (students of animal behavior) hold that the activities of almost all living creatures except humans are usually automatic responses to exter-nal stimuli, responses that are the result of genetic patterning. And most of these researchers have concluded that animals

An Unseen Campaign

"Everybody here says they don't see a campaign taking place," Mr. Weinberg noted with a touch of weariness in his voice, "but what they're used to costs a lot of money. We can't afford things like sound trucks and bunting and a lot of brass bands at rallies."

Ha said the Ford-Dole operation in New York had the services of one car, one station wagon and a truck rented on a day-to-day hasis for upatate deliveries.
"And I wouldn't bave done that if there wasn't a United Parcel strike," he said. "Io 1972, we didn't eveo think of that, much less worry. You just had it done.

"The regular Democratic activists really areo't involved in this campaign," said Miles Rubin, who was the central figure in the Presidential campaign of George McGovern in California in 1972, when more than $2 million was spent for the Democrat from South Dakota in the California primary alone. This year, the entire Carter field budget for California is $283,000 his largest operating budget for the campaign in any state.

"People here got spoiled during tha McGovern campaign," Mr. Rubin said, adding that many who might have been expected to take part this year have "thrown up their hands and are sitting this one out."

More important, perhaps, there are reports that blue-collar and lower-income groups who have not had a high profile in campaigns of the past, have come forward, encouraged by the Carter cam-paign, but have been turned away disappointed when they find there is no lace for them.

Some nonpartisan experts in the field of campaign costs are reluctantly con-cluding that the campaign spending reforms will need considerable revision by the 1980 election.

Herbert E. Alexander, director of the Citizens Research Foundation in Prince-ton, N.J., who has been studying the role of money in American politics since 1958, is critical of the flat grant method of Government financing in the general elec-

Challenger at a Disadvantage

In the first place, Mr. Alexander said n an interview, the figure of $21.8 million is far too low to adequately finance a national campaign, and it places the challenger at a distinct disadvantage against an incumbent President.

The obvious advantages of the incumbency, with a President's freedom to use of the White House and all its powers, mean that a challeoger has to spend more money in a campaign just to compete effectively, he said.

When both campaigns are starved for funds, this advantage is magnified, he an aggregate that approached $100 million on their campaigns, the excesses of which led directly to the reforms that set limits on this year's spending. In 1972 the defeated Democratic nominee, Sena tor George McGovern of South Dakota, saddled with fund-ralsing difficulties and unpopular with powerful elements within his own party, still managed to spend reore than $30 million in the period between his nomination and the election tween his nomination and the election

Mr. Alexander suggests that $40 million might be a reasonable hudget for a Presidential campaign today, and he believe that a matching program similar to the system used in the primaries this year be used. In other words, the Government would pay up to $20 million in funds to match campaign contributions raised by a party's positive.

By CHRISTOPHER LYDON Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24-James A. Baker 3d, President Ford's campaign manager, made oo effort to deny that, when Republican headquarters beard what Eugene J. McCarthy was saying about Jimmy Carter, the President Ford

Committee gave serious thought to putting some money into Mr. McCarthy's poverty-stricken independent candidacy. It would have been perfectly legal,

Mr. Baker told reporters when the subject came up the other day. And, in fact, it might never have become public if Ford finance people had simply and quietly urged well-wishers to direct their checks to the McCarthy cam-

"Maury Stans would have known how to do it," one high-ranking Republican said today, recalling the onetime Commerce Secretary, Maurice H. Stans, who pleaded guilty to mishandling Nixon campaign funds in 1972. "But the P.F.C. has never had that kind of sophistication."

White House Aides Happy White House aides glow at the unexpected pleasure of Mr. McCarthy's attacks on Mr. Carter and on his one-time Democratic seat mate in the Senate from Minnesota, Senator Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee Referring to the limited scope of the number two job., Mr. McCarthy said that Mr. Mondale "has the soul of a Vice President." ably recalls that after the shootings on more of a demagogue. On energy prob-lems, among others, Mr. Carthy gives higher marks to the President than to Mr. Carter. If it was making the decision again, the Ford staff would have promoted the inclusion of Mr. McCarthy in the three televised debates with Mr. Carter. Indeed, the White House waited eagerly but in vain last week for a sponsor other than the League of Women Voters to propose a three-way confrontation—which Mr. Ford would quickly have accepted.

Common Cause, the self-styled peo-ple's lobby, assailed Representative H.

John Heinz 3d last week for spending nearly $2 million, and nearly all cf it from his own pocket, even before the closing drive of his Republican campaign for the Senate in Pennsylvania.

By Common Cause's account, the $1.5 million in personal funds that Mr. Heinz had contributed to the campaign hy the end of September was more than the total amount that any Senate candidate had raised from all contributors combined in 1974 or so far in 1976.

Runners-up among the Senate-race spenders, Common Cause reported from Federal disclosures, were Senator James L. Buckley, Conservative-Republican of New York, $1.3 million: Senator John V. Tunney, Democrat of California, $1.25 million; Senator Lloyd Bentsen; Democrat of Texas, $993,000; Senator Robert Taft, Republican of Ohio, $866,000, and in sixth place, Mr. Heinz's Democratic opponent in Pennsylvania. Representative William J. Green, $751,206.

"The Heinz case," said Fred Wertheimer, Common Cause's monitor of campaign finance, "is a classic example of the terrible inequities created by the Supreme Court decision allowing unlimited use of personal wealth in a Con-gressional campaign."

Nonsense, replied David Garth, the advertising manager of the Heinz campaign. Mr. Heinz's spending is nowhere near a record, Mr. Garth asserted in a telephone interview today. He said that Representative Richard L. Ottinger, a Democrat, spent more than $4. million. with Mr. Garth's help, in the New York Senate race of 1970, while Vice President Rockefeller spent half again more on some of his New York gubernatorial races.

And even this year, Mr.Garth said, on a per capita basis, John D. Rockefeller 4th is speoding more to win the Governor's post among fewer than two million voters in West Virginia than Mr. Heinz is spending on some five million Pennsylvanians.

As for complaints from Mr. Green, Mr. Garth will try to respond in a lastminute Heinz commercial next week, quoting Rose Kennedy's line on family spending in the 1960 Presidential campaign, "Thank God we can afford it."

Other candidates who spent $100,000 or more of their own resources on Sen-ate races, as of Oct. I, were, according to the Common Cause list, Richard Lorber, the Democratic nominee in Rhode Island, at $370,000; Robert Monks, Republican in Maine, $286,000;

Denois DeConcini, Demo na. $176,000; Represe Steiger, Republican $125,000; James Sasser, Tennessee, $115,000, and er, an independent $107,000.

The airline that flies to more of the world also flies to more of Europe.

Pan Am flies direct to more cities in the world from the U.S. than any other airline.

And since Europe is a large part of the world, we also fly to more of its cities than any other U.S. airline.

And all our flights to Europe leave from Pan Am's Worldport™ terminal at JFK.

We leave for London every day at 10:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. On 747s.

We leave for Frankfurt every day at 6:00 p.m., 7:00 p.m., and 7:45 p.m. On 747s.

We leave for Rome every day at 8:15 p.m. On a 747. For Munich every day at 6:00 p.m. On a 747.

And for Brussels, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, and the rest of Europe we leave several times a week.

On many of our 747s we offer first class passengers a chance to dine in our upper-deck dining room. At a table like you would in a fine restaurant. And like in a fine restaurant, we ask that you make a reservation. (You can make it when you make your flight reservation.)

And we have a lot of fares to choose from.

Besides first class and regular economy fares, we offer 14/21-day fares, 22/45-day fares, and 22/45-day Budget Fares.

Budget Fares can save you about 50% over regular round trip economy fares. (Because these fares are so low, there are various restrictions and conditions which your travel agent can explain more easily than we can here.)

The result of all those fares? Well, if you're vacationing on a tight budget we can help loosen your belt a little.

Dr. Alex Comfort on the Joy of Aging

A relatively new prejudice is abroad in our society today, according to Dr.

Alex Comfort. He calls it "agism." What is ironic about it, he suggested recently, is that "nobody is safe being prejudiced against what they themselves are going to become."

"I wonder," he mused aloud, "what Archie Bunker would say about Puerto Ricans if he knew he was going to become one on his birthday."

Dr. Comfort, as anyone beyond the age of pubescence must know by now, is the author of that best-selling book, "Joy of Sex," and its sequel, "More Joy." Now he has struck again. He has written an informal, good-humored mini-encyclopedia on aging. It is called "A Good Age" (Crown; $9.95) and will shortly be in bookstores.

'Self-Fulfilling Prophecy'

Although it is a side of him oot well known outside of scientific and medical circles, Dr. Comfort's credentials for authoring this latest book are im-peccable. Before he became the great emancipator of the bedchamber, be was (and still is) an eminent hiologist and a leading authority on gerontol-ogy, the study of the phenomena of

In town receotly for a series of seminars on geriatric medicine, he stopped long enough to discuss some of his do's, don'ts and how-to's for

Aging is befogged in a set of myths that have very little to do with the actual happenings of getting older, he [suggested. "The disabilities we attribto age are the result of prejudice and misuoderstanding," he said firmly. "It's just not true that older people become less intelligent, less employable or asexual.

"But il society believes these things, tends to produce in older people a self-fulfilling prophecy. Racism and sexism are out of date. It's about time we realize that agism is out of date. too." Except for certain physiological causes, he said, that constellation of discomforting behavior that is subsumed under the sweeping catchword "senility" is more likely to be the reaction of "the old persoo who isa't prepared to stay quiet and insists on making waves."

"Old people become confused, deluded and unable to cope with reality," he said, "because they're ill, or because they always were crazy or because society drives them crazy. But not simply because they're old. We tend to childrenize old people, and they will tend to react in kind." The solution, then, to socially induced senifity. For openers, "make demands on older people; give them responsibilities," he said.

Urges Bloody-Mindedness'

"What this is all about is being hloody-minded," Dr. Comfort said. In a state of bloody-mindedness, be explained, one assumes the posture of digging in the heels and rearing up from them whenever it is necessary.

The musings of Dr. Comfort, who has trimmed the hippie-length locks of his "Joy" days a hit and exchanged his California coveralls for a proper husiness suit, were peppered with exhortations to arms: anything from a refusal to "go gentle . . . into a rip-off nursing home" to denying credit to demeaning 'grandpa" epithets.

But if his recent reflections, as well as his book, were concerned with the necessity of a sometimes genteel, sometimes mulish militancy toward a society become, then his second most thundering theme was work.

As far as Dr. Comfort is concerned, "a good retirement is about two weeks." Hohbies are all very well, in their place; volunteerism is fine if it's your bag and you can afford it, and if you prefer to "sit home knitting" that should be your prerogative, he suggested. But older people need a sense of achievement from work just as much as young people do, and mandatory retirement at an increasingly younger age is the self-destructive impulse of a myopic society, he believes.

"If hy the year 2000, 14 to 20 percent of the population are unemployed by reason of age, the cost-benefit analysis is clear. The nation can't afford it."

However, he added, it may take a minor revolution or major evolution to reconstitute the economy m such a way as to provide jobs for older people in times of high unemployment and increasing automation. Education, he believes, is one answer both as an occupation for the elderly—who have stores of experience to draw from—and for the problems of educational institutions. "The education industry is going to run out of students as well as credit." he said. "And once it gets through people's heads that old people can learn just as well as young people, the education industry will have to begin to turn to them."

Other Topics of Concern

The quality of life at all ages, he suggested, is improved hy having enough money, a sense of worthwhileness, a useful occupation and proper medical services. But these elements may be even more important in old age, when all four are often in shortest supply in order that it is not age. est supply. In order, then, to get, or keep, any or all of the above, the aging and aged are probably going to have to insist on them by any means at hand, from organizing politically to re-fusing to "role-play."

Among other topics Dr. Comfort touched on were:

Sex-If you are oot physically impaired, or socially bereft, it can go on Living Alone-"It has its compensa-

Bereavement—It should be thought through and discussed beforehand, and grief, when it comes, should not be

Health—The quality of health could be improved by greater emphasis on prevention; making people respossible for their own health; more specialists in geriatrics, and a community-based rather than a national health service.

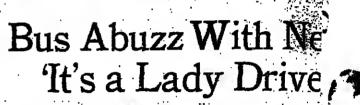

Disengagement-Most disengagement from the affairs of the world, when it is oot what society pushes on older people, is a reflection of "a declining tolerance for triviality.

Hopes for the future-There's no reason why they shouldn't be there. But, he said, "with the growth of experience, most people's goals change markedly. And as their valoes different thing."

Dr. Comfort, who is 57 years old married for a second time, and with ooe grown son who is a newspaper reporter, appears to have a good statistical chance of living to a ripe old age

His father died last year at the age of 94 (geoetic inheritance helps, he has pointed out), and Dr. Comfort practices moderation in almost everything, neither smoking (except for the occasional cigar) nor drinking: following a balanced diet, engaging in some ex-ercise, and keeping regular hours. How then does Dr. Comfort envision his own old age? "I think I shall be as I am now. Only probably more bloody-minded,"

Gingkos— Public And Private

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE

When we wrote recently of a Chinese family and their venture in gathering gingko outs from Manhattan trees, we could scarcely have expected the abundant harvest of letters the account would produce. We are now in possession of many hitherto unknown and arcane facts about the sex life of the tree and the fruit that it bears. The following is a form a reader in the

"Several years ago, I saw within a fenced enclosure a stooping Chioese woman with a brown paper bag picking up nuts that had fallen to the ground from the overhead gingko tree. What was most remarkable about it was the fact that this gingko tree was oo the immediate oorth side of City Hall, a few feet from the Mayor's office! There are several gingkos in City Hall

"Your reader referred to the fruit as pod. The botanist would label it as drupe because it is fleshy and has a shell in the center that eocloses the nut or seed.

"I must disillusion your reader who speaks of a block party to harvest the fruit of the gingko trees on the block. Virtually all gingko trees planted oo our city streets are 'male' trees and, therefore, do not bear fruit; or you can plant all 'female' trees provided you make certain that there are no 'male' trees in the vicinity that might pollinate the 'female' trees.

"By planting only 'male' trees, there is not only no littering of the streets with the fruit but also no unpleasant odor from the fruit when crushed by motor vehicle tires. If the fleshy part is pierced, an odor is emitted that some have compared with limburger

We have a letter from Lois Williams of New Rochelle, N. Y., who informs us that she has her very own and private gingko tree, which, to say the least, seems a study in good-news,

"An ancient and noble 150-foot high female gingko tree adorns my front lawn-a corner lot-spreading its graceful fanshaped leafy branches over my entrance way and public sidewalk as well," Mrs. Williams wrote.

"When my spreading gingko tree is in heat, it takes more than 'grit' to approach it. Soon my front lawn and surrounding territory will be covered with beautiful plum-colored velvety fruit concealing the nut within Then the frost will come and at a given time there will be a shower of golden leaves not one by one—but the whole tree, usually within an hour or so.

"So far, so good but then the olive shaped plum begins to ripen and eventually rot away from the out ... By now the air is polluted with some-thing akin to a barnyard stench, only worse. If all the dogs in New Rochelle were led to my corner for their oeces-sary routines, the resulting odoriferous air quality could not equal that already created by my little sleeping gingko nuts.

"Pedestrians take to the streets. Friends are warned and before a dinner party I sweep the walk every 15 minutes. Each year my gardener threatens to cut the tree down as the nuts mangle his leaf blower, thus re-leasing more 'fumes.'

"He must then shovel the nuts into bags, for the city refuses to dispose of them otherwise. Apparently leaf sweepers are not designed to include

"We tried giving the tree 'the pill' one year in the form of a series of expensive sprays. It worked for one year, but subsequent sprayings did oot, and we had more than ever before.

So we have given up oo that." We also learned that gingko trees are ancient of days. This is from a man connected with of the Meadowby Arboretum and Nursery in Lewisburg,

"Gingko hiloba is a most unique tree that has been growing oo this earth at least 10 million years. Today it exists as an extremely tolerable tree for growing in today's environment. I hasten to add that fortunately most of the trees planted in cities are males. "

Americans Adjusting to Life in Latvia

By CHRISTOPHER S. WREN

VENTSPILS, U.S.S.R.-Gloria Weed pines for her late evening bowl of Grape Nuts. Marie Mabile misses chat-ting by phone with her mother on Staten Island. Corione Houk and her husband bought hicycles to make up for the lack of a car.

But they have all opted for a life that is one of the sparest for foreigners living in the Soviet Union and they say they doo't really mind it. The women and their husbands are part of a small community of a dozen Americans Ilving in the Latvian port of Ventspils, where their employer, the Occidental Petroleum Corporation, is huilding a chemical storage and loading terminal.

The Soviet Union has long been treated as a hardship post for Americans working abroad, but io fact, life in Moscow is oot all that uncomfortable. American diplomats live nearly as well as at home, enjoying American movies and frozeo food, including orange juice and white hread, shipped from West Germany.

These embassy perquisites are not shared with American husinessmen and correspondents lo Moscow, but by buy-ing special ruble certificates with dollars, any resident American can shop at a special supermarket stocked with better-than-average Soviet produce and some foreign goods. Moreover, Mos-cow, offers a wealth of cultural com-pensations like the Bolshoi Theater, where a top ticket costs only $4.65. They Got Over It' Out in the Soviet inInterland, both groceries and cultural amenities grow scarcer, making a bleak life for the several dozen Americans who work or study in the smaller towns. Yet those living in Ventspils, a town of about 50,000, losist that the small triumphs of day-to-day life compensate for the drawbacks. "Some of the wives can't do the things they do at at home: they have a bad day or two, but then they get over it," said J. T. Houk, a pipeline specialist from Baton Rouge, La.

Perhaps the biggest adjustment involves the travel limitations imposed on foreigners by the Soviet Government. In Ventspils, the Americans are restricted to an area of about five square miles, the same controls that apply to foreign seamen in the port. The only other city open to foreigners in Latvia is the capital of Riga, and it is four hours away by a slow local train that leaves at 6 A.M.

"The toughest part is the confinement," said Risley P. Mabile, a construction superintendent also from Batoo Rouge. "You can't go any place without permission, and Ventspils is a pretty small town."

With no place to drive, oo one owns a car. They take buses or just walk. Ina O'Shea, whose husband, Gene, is an insulation specialist on the project, has found that she now walks "maybe six or seven miles a day."

The dozen Americans in Ventspils are quartered in a block of apartmeots segregated from the rest of a new hous-ing project. A matron at a desk hy the door watches them come and go. Some of the Americans began to use a back donr, but they were told that it was against the fire laws.

Three-Room Apartments But the three-room apartments are comfortably furnished by Soviet standards, and some wives like Mrs. Weed have spruced them op with homemade

A local restaurant caters lunch and dinner for the group weekdays in a communal dining room. "That stuffed cabbage is the best I've ever eaten." Mr. Mabile said.

For breakfasts and weekend meals, the wives turn to the local stores, where a pint cao of imported orange juice costs $1.33. "The goods aren't available all the time," and Mrs. Mabile, a young, dark-haired New Yorker.

"They're around, and then they're gone.

"They're around, and then they're gone.

You'll go out lonking for tomato paste and they wont have it."

Initially, the women also found themselves hampered by not being able to speak Russian or Latvian. Corky Houk recalled that she once queued up at a store for eggs and found other shoppers pushing in front of her. "At home, I could say, 'Pve been bere first,' hut how cso you here?" she said.

But eveo with the market jostling, Mrs. Weed, a gregarious woman from Long Beach, Calif., said, "The Latvian people have been fantastically friendly. I think we're still something of a novelty."

While the men are oo the coostruction job, their wives confront their own daily problems. "We have a ringer-type washing machine, so when we do a wash, it takes a good part of the day," Mrs. Mabile said. "To walk to and from town also takes a good part of a few

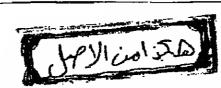

Tomatoes on the Balcony The evenings are spent in routine activities like playing cards or reading.
Mr. Mahile has been raising tomatoes on his balcony. Earl J. Weed, the project's electrical superintendent, was: reated to a surprise on local television tha other night. "They had some of the old Charlie Chaplin movies, and I had not seen a one of them," he announced with an air of elation.

Currently, noce of the Americanshas children living in Ventspils. Cyrus H. Kunkel, an engineer, said that he had to send his wife and haby home to New Jersey when the child was found allergic to milk and they could not find any prepared formula. The Americans live at such close quarters that Ina O'Shea worries. "You can lose your identity, and I find that disastrous, she sand, so she struck off almost immediately oo her own. A devout Catholic, she walks several miles to and from mass every morn-ing. She was pleased to find the service held in Latin and crowded with local

So far the loogest Occidental tour in Ventspils has been a year, and most couples have yet to experience the dark, damp winter. But the construction trade has left them more flexible than most. Mrs. Mabile recommended that newcomers "bring enough toiletries and enough adventurousness to adapt to the situation."

With the opportuoity to bank almost all their salary, the Americans in Ventspils seem content to put up with relative isolation. "When you add up the pluses and minuses, it's a nice place to live." Mr. Weed decided. Gloria Weed. who previously was left at home on her husband's foreign assignments, said, "If my husband is happy on the job, that makes me happy. Catholic Meeting's Proposal Stirs Backers of Women's Ordination | Catholic Meeting's Proposal Stirs Backers of Women's Ordination | Catholics in increasing numbers are discussed.

DETROIT, Mich.; Oct. 24-Sister Dena Barron, in a pattern followed by nuns for hundreds of years, quietly carries out pastoral functions in an inner-city Roman Catholic parish here. But, unlike sisters in the past, she is also studying for a at St. Mary'a College that she hopes will some day help admit her to the priesthood.

Her hopes, and those of many other women, got a lift yesterday when an unusual assembly of citizen church represectatives urged the nation's bishops to remove the obstacles that now forbid vomen to be ordained as priests. The delegates also voted to grant married men the same privilege.

Those who have been working toward these goals were elated. Tha endorsement had been stronger than even the most vocal advocates of the ordination of women had expected.

One Player Wins 2 Events In Metropolitan Tournament

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

A varied program of one-session championships, plus a three-way tie in the women's pairs led to perhaps the largest ever number of winners to emerge from tha first two days of the metropolitan tournament of the Greater New York Bridge Association Friday and Saturday at the Statler Hilton

The only player to win two events was L. I. Wadhwani of New York, who captured both newcomers pairs, playing first with Joseph Coodiotti, then with C. Mintzer, both of New York.

Other winners were:
Women's pairs—Stasha Wrobleski of Garnerville, N.Y., and Judy Tucker of New York, tied with Nancy Schwantes. Nancy Gold, Ayako Kawasaki and Sachiko Nakano, all of New York.
Men's pairs—Oscar Eichmann and Aaron Greene of New York.
Mixed pairs—Robert and Phyllis Quinn of Peekskill, N.Y.

Fight A masters pairs—John Bookstaver of San Rafael, Calif., and Paul Hitney of Hartsdale, N.Y. Flight B masters pairs—Donald Bridges of Washington and David Rosenberg of New York.

Open pairs—David Berkowitz and John Soladar of New York.

The last victory increased Berkowitz's lead in the race for 1976 New York player-of-the-year.

A Freakish Deal

Perhaps the most freakish deal played in any recent New York Swiss team event is the one shown in the diagram. It is an excellent illustration of the guiding principle of bidding freak deals: underbid but then keep bidding. The important thiog is to play the hand, and the exact level is less important. Psychology is more impor-tant than technique. The opponents must be left guessing how strong the hand really is.

West was on the right track up to a point. Looking at ao iocredible hand with 12 guaranteed tricks and some hope of 13 he bid modestly to start South's conventional forcing resposse, he simply jumped to four hearts. The chance that this would end the auction was oegligible, and even if this had happened, East-West would still have heaten the par result, which is for

South to play seven spades doubled down two tricks.

Naturally enough, South kept hid-ding, and eventually introduced his spade suit at the level of six. West should now have persevered with seven hearts, with the odds enormously in his favor: playing the hand could result in a small loss or an enormous profit, while defending could lead to a hig loss or a small profit.

Perhaps East should have bid oo in any event, since he held seven cards in his partner's sults, including one significant honor, and oothing of value in defense. If he had, South would have had to coosider taking out insur-

West's hig profit had already disappeared, and his hand of a lifetime turned into a disaster wheo he misguessed the defense and tried to cash two heart tricks. In view of East's pass of six clubs, he feared that South was

The declarer, Alan Dichter of New lead, drew trumps and claimed the slam. He hoped his teammates would hid and make seven hearts for a total of 3,640, but they rested in five hearts, and the team woo "only" 19 interna-tional match points instead of 23.

Disease and History

PLAGUES AND PEOPLES. By William H.
McNeill. 369 pages. Anchor/Doubleday. $10.

Feeling bad about it, we woo't let history alone. We keep poking at or thumping on it with a stick: Talk. Fess up. Who's to blame? Patriarchy, monoeism, capitalism, sublimation, the territorial imperative, Guteoberg, sunspots, the Zodiac, fluoridated water?

William H. McNeill argues on behalf of disease. Mr. McNeill is a professor of history at the University of Chicago, editor of The Journal of Modern History, and author of, among other books, "The Rise of the West," which won a National Book Award in 1964. He believes that "civilized infections" -"whether propagated via the respira-tory tract, like measies, smallpox, and influenza, or via the alimentary canal, like typhoid and dysentery, oot to meotion the ever-popular cholera, ma-laria, syphilis and bobonic plague bave been underrated in most historical accounts of how the human community came to be the way it is.

The 'Ecological Niche'

According to "Plagues and Peoples," our relations with microparasites (viruses, bacteria, etc.) have played a crucial role in the development of cities. the outcome of the Peloponnesian wars, dynastic rule in Egypt, the susceptibil-ity of Europe to Christianity and of China to Buddhism, the decline of the. Roman and Spanish empires, the imperialisms of Great Britain and Japan. the lodian caste system, the conquest of the New World, the ideas of the Enlightenment, the population explosion and the energy crisis.:

A microparasite is always looking for host to live oo or in, whether that host is a rat or a buman being. Either the parasite and the host work out some sort of accommodation, or both die. Disease organisms appear to have been just as successful as human beings in adapting to the new "ecological niche" we made for ourselves wheo we climbed out of the trees, took up farming, started cities, sailed the oceans and went to war. In fact, the disease organisms came right along with us. Those of us who developed resistances and immunities to these organisms or managed to domesticate them so that they only attacked children, thereby building up antibodies in the survivors—tended to fare better in confreotations with those who had not experienced the disease. Amerindian civilization, Mr. McNeill suggests, collapsed oot so much from the force of Spanish arms as from the smallpox Cortex and Pizarro brought with them to Mexico and Peru.

The history of war is, in fact, Mr. McNeill's best evidence. Until the 20th century, "disease was always a far more iethal factor than enemy action. even doring ective campaigns. In the Crimean War (1854-56), for example, 10 times as many British soldiers died of dysentery as from all the Russian weapons put together, and half a century later, in the Boer War (1899-1902). British deaths from disease as officially recorded were five times as great as deaths from enemy action." All that lovely trench warfare on the Western front in World War I was made possible by modern medical science, which had finally figured out what lice were up to, just as jungle warfare in the tropical Pacific theater to World War II was made possible by figuring out what mosquitoes were up to. After grasping the advantages of inoculating soldiers, we got around to inoculating civilians. And now there are too many

Mr. McNeill is at his most fascioating when he works on the relationship between pestilence and philosophical systems. (Thus, the Enlightenment philosophers grew up in relatively healthy times, and it was easy to think that man could perfect himself. When, on the other hand, you are surrounded by plague, caused by something you don't even know exists, the idea of an afterlife and a divine meaning help to console you.) He is at his most ambitious in proposing what be calls a 'macro-parasitism," a feeding of man on men-(By which he more or less means gov-ernments, with their armies and their taxes. Egyptiao peasants would probably not bave tolerated descotic dynasts as long as they did if they badn't been suffering from chronic schisto-somiasis; they didn't have any energy.)

The Company We Keep

One might have wished-I did, any way—for a chapter or two on the literary imagination of pestilence, of meaningless death: the plague, say, from Daniel Defoe to Albert Camus. Surely art was as much influenced as surely art was as much influenced as philosophy and theology. And anyone interested in the subject would do well to consult Dr. Theodor Rosebury's "Life on Man" (1969), an elegant argument on behalf of the microbes that make our bodies their environments. According to Dr. Rosebury, we couldn't get along without those microbes to help develop, arthodies, against infection develop antibodies against infection and to develop the walls of our various tracts. No matter bow itchy it is in the ecological niche, there are usually good reasons for the company we keep.

Still, an enormous amount of information and intelligence is crammed into "Plagues and Peoples," including a minihistory of medicioe. Like the scholarly work on topography, climate, trade patterns and eating habits being done by Braudel and others associated with Annales "Economies, Societés Civilisa-tions," it is one more reminder that Marx and Freud didn't figure everything out, any more than Gibbon had, or Thucydides. I find it exhibarating; we are more complicated than we imagine, or are willing to settle for.

Quality of Justice

Justice is dispensed in a society in many different ways. Sometimes it is the policeman on the beat or in the stationhouse who decides for an accused individual whether the society is just or not. Sometimes it is a district attoroey and at other times it is a state judge or a group of judges in a district who set the legal atmosphere. But no matter how large a role a single official or set of institutions may play in any given area, in the broad sweep of American society it is the Supreme Court that determines how rich or how thin the atmosphere of justice is to be. The Board of Governors of the Society of American Law Teachers asserted recently that the current Court is diluting the atmosphere for justice in this country by cutting back on the ability of a wide variety of claimants to be heard in the Federal courts.

The law professors charged that the Court's majority has, by virtue of divers technical devices, shown a hostility to a number of the substantive decisions, particularly in the field of criminal law, of the Warren Court and to certain classes of claimants as well. The technical ruliogs making access to the Court more difficult range from decisions making it too expensive for plaintiffs with small claims to bring class action suits, to rulings under which it is difficult to fashion remedies appropriate to certain rights, to opinions limiting reviews of state court decisions on illegally seized evidence and finally to a ruling that makes it harder for public-interest lawyers to be compensated for their work.

The law professors perceive a clear pattern in all these decisions. They suggest that the greatest achievement of the Warren Court may have been to make the Federal judiciary more available to those who felt they had just claims against public or private misconduct from which redress had previously been almost totally unavailable. But they cite a clear warning in 1971 by Chlef Justice Warren Burger that the courts should not be viewed as a vehicle for social change. He suggested then that young people who become lawyers with such a goal in mind were in for "some disappointments."

One of the healthiest developments of the 1960's was the accessibility of the Warren Court and the concurrent development of what the law professors call "a vigorous and skillful public-interest bar." During a decade when American public officials were urgeotly promising minorities and young people that national institutions were open to orderly change without recourse to the streets, it was the Federal judiclary that most consistently supported that claim. The courts gave rise to a belief in the country that no matter how much injustice one perceived, the peaceful struggle for justice could bear fruit in concrete ways that actually affected peoples' lives.

The sense that the Court is nourishing justice is waning in the country today. Public-Interest lawyers now often seek to avoid the Supreme Court and the promise of orderly institutional change seems dimmer now than it did a decade ago. It is not just young publicinterest lawyers who have faced "some disappointments" at this turn of events. It is everyone who cherishes the ideal of a society in which the robust pursuit of justice is not simply possible but is actively encouraged at all levels of public and private activity.

A Hospital Divided

Faced with an unseemly contest-which has been " tainted by religious, ethnic and political overtones-for a lucrative affiliation contract with the new Lincoln Hospital, the board of the Health and Hospitals Corporation has taken the easiest way out and divided the contract between a Roman Catholic bospital and a Jewish medical

This decision may mollify the disputants, but we doubt that it serves the best interests of the sick or of the city.

The parochial prejudices that have been outrageously invoked in this "struggle for the bealth care dollar," as the president of the Health and Hospitals Corporation has described it, have nothing to do with bealth care-or any other aspect of civic life. They should be firmly rejected as a basis for any decision.

The shockingly mismanaged Lincoln Hospital has more than enough troubles already without being subjected to fresh partisan feuding. What the hospital urgently needs is new, competent administrative leadership and an affiliation contract that is based strictly on the ability of the affiliating institution to provide the kind of quality service that is required at a reasonable cost to the

If politics and parochialism are to prevail, New York-is never going to get the kind of health care it needs at a price it can afford-or at any price.

Twenty Years After

Wide attention is properly being paid these days to the anniversary of the Hungarian Revolution of 1956. That may seem strange to many, as the revolution itself lasted less than two weeks from the first street demonstration to the Soviet invasion that restored Moscow's control. The man installed in power in Budapest by Soviet tanks, Janos Kadar, is still there. Hungary is so completely a Soviet satellite that Hungarian troops were required to participate in the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968. Skeptics may well ask why the anniversary of a short, abortive uprising should be honored in the democratic world.

The answer derives from the fact that in the long run men are ruled by ideas more than by guns. The aims of the Hungarian Revolutioo were in fact partially realized even though the revolt itself was drowned in treachery and in blood. The revolution was a cry of pain from an entire people that the decade-old Stalinist oppression was unendurable. Hungary in the mid-1950's was a country in which wrenching poverty was combined with police terror. The Magyars had been reduced virtually to a nation of serfs.

Today the average Hungarian is not only materially far better off than he was two decades ago, but is in effect a co-conspirator with his national leaders in an arrangement providing constraloed liberty-which is better than no liberty at all. Russia will not voluntarily free Hungary and the Hungarians are too weak to evict their Soviet masters. But with that situation accepted as a fact of life, the Hungarian people are today enjoying a far wider range of discussion, knowledge and international contacts than would have seemed possible in 1956.

The most important accomplishment of the Hungarian Revolution was to remove any doubt in the Kremlin that the old Stalinist order was no longer viable and that fundamental changes bad to be made io the Soviet Union as well as in the captive nations. The result, in Hungary, was the conclusion that the citizens had to be won over by a program of appeasement instead of by repression. The Kremlin determined that the basis of state policy had to be a broad coalition hased on national conciliation, as expressed in Kadar's formula: "He who is not against us is with us."

But Moscow deceives itself if it thinks the wounds of 1956 bave healed. Neither the Hungarian people nor the world bas forgotten the martyrs of the revolution, headed by Prime Minister Imre Nagy and Defense Minister Pal Maletar, both of whom were murdered as a result of almost unbelievable Russian treachery. Pal Maletar, invited to negotiate in good faith with Soviet representatives for the withdrawal of Russian troops from Hungary. was seized and executed; Nagy was similarly seized by the Russians despite a safe-conduct guarantee by their own new puppet regime. Their sacrifice, and that of the others who died in those two glorious and terrible weeks, will be remembered as long as the Hungarian people value freedom.

Congress: The Country

We discuss below a few Congressional contests throughout the nation that give every indication of being close and that we believe to be of particular significance. We omit reference to contests in the metropolitan area, which have previously been discussed on this page.

Among those Representatives who face real difficulty in their fight for re-election, we particularly bope to see the following members returned to Washington:

PENNSYLVANIA: The question in the Philadelphia suburban area around Chester is whether a first-term Democrat with an extremely consistent liberal voting record can be returned by-a district that until two years ago had elected only Republicans in this century. Representative Robert W. Edgar has concerned himself particularly with getting Highway Trust funds for mass transit.

MARYLAND: Representative Gladys N. Spellman (Dem). attracted attention in her first term by taking an active part in the ousting of three entrenched committee chairmen. She, too, has a voting record more liberal than the prevailing sentiment of her district.

VIRGINIA: Representative Jnseph L. Fisher (Dem.) upset the Broyhill machine in the Arlington district two years ago. Assigned to the Ways and Means Committee in his first term, Mr. Fisher is regarded as one of the more impressive new members of the House.

WEST VIRGINIA: Ken Hechler, a veteran Democrat who made the mistake of running for Governor, is trying to bold on to his seat by a write-in campaign against official Democratic and Republican contenders. In the long war against strip-mining be has been an untiring leader. Too valuable to lose,

H.LINOIS: Abner Mikva (Dem.) is highly respected as one of the ablest, as well as most progressive, members in the House, particularly in the field of taxation. Martin Russo (Dem.), also from the Chicago area, is a champion of gun control and a major target of the gun lobby.

IOWA: Representative Edward Mezvinsky (Dem.) faces

a serious challenge from a Republican who accuses him of being a "Bella Abzug Democrat." Whatever that means, Mr. Mezvinsky has proved a valuable member who ought to be retained. Running from the opposite eod of the state is Tom Harkin (Dem.) who stunned the district two years ago by ousting a deeply entrenched and wholly committed right-wing Republican. Mr. Harkin, who bas a high liberal rating as a freshman, has only the advantage of incumbency in his bard campaign against another extreme conservative.

COLORADO: As a member of the Armed Services Committee, Representative Patricia Schroeder (Dem.) has a fine reputation for uncovering wasteful expenditures in the defense program. Representative Timothy E. Wirth, also from the Denver area, did much to organize his fellow-freshmen and gained attention for his work on energy problems. Both incumbents have hard fights which they deserve to win.

Besides these worthwhile members, we hope for the best from three Congressional districts where promising challengers are conceded a chance of defeating incumbants who should be replaced. In his 24 years in the House, Minority Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona has little record of legislative accomplishment and a long one of obstruction. He is opposed by Pat Fullinwider. (Dem.) a housewife who came close to beating him two years ago. In California, Representative Burt L. Talcott (Rep.), with a dismally negative record, is opposed by Leon E. Panetta, the lawyer who, then a Republican, resigned as director of the Office of Civil Rights to protest against what he regarded as President Nixon's sabotage of school desegregation.

The nation will henefit if Ken Pursley (Dem.), a young Idaho lawyer, retires incumbent Steven D. Symms. A Reagan Republican with an extreme right-wing legislstive record, Mr. Symms crossed party lines only onceto campaign for a Democratic member of the John Birch Society because be so admired his political philosophy.

Voter Apathy: Don't Blame the Candidates Our Wasted W

To the Editor:

This year few political observers and columnists have failed to cite voter apathy over the contest between President Ford and Governor Carter. To be sure, the low interest is a real and severe problem, but the causes seem to be misunderstood. It has become commonplace to conclude that the apathy is a direct result of the "lackluster" and "uninspiring" discussion of the "real issues" facing us. The candidates are portrayed as having made the strategic decision to avoid any meaningful discussion of the issues. But the facts seem other-

This year it is not the candidates who lack the necessary insight and enthusiasm: it's the voters. If the television debates haven't given us the "kicks" that we've come to expect from Sonny and Cher, if the personal charm of Ford and Carter hasn't matched the baloed memory of the Kennedys, we're to blame, not the candidates. Hard to accept though it may be, we simply aren't as interested as past generations in political processes and political discourse. Two generations agn confrontations between speakers of no greater adeptness or skill were a form of Saturdaynight entertainment. The Chautauqua circuit in the Northeast drew thousands of Americans from their homes into public meeting halls. Debate, discussion and sharp-tongued conflict meant to them that the system was working. Even inflated political oratory was seen as a legitimate mode of expression because truth was said to emerge from the competing claims of the aspiring office-seekers.

Whether because of the betrayal of Watergate, or the supposed sophisticatinn of the electorate, we have lost our ability to enjny a political campaign. We no longer delight in weighing opposing contentions. The answers are to be delivered painlessly and without dissent. The debates are "boring"-not up to our standards for television, or to our need for a hero with all the simplicity of a General Eisenhower. Today it would be against the grain to suggest that our political leaders are making an honest effort to do the best they can. As a result they are in the ironic position of seeking to be public servants under a cloud of collective guilt that the electorate asks them to bear. I suspect that the nation's present-malaise better confirms nur shallowness than the candidates'.

To Choose a President

Presidential campaigns are often criticized for focusing on personalities rather than on issues. I suggest that a choice hetween personalities may be as valid a criterion for voting as a choice based on policies and substantive issues. The Presidency of Richard Nixon, for example, was toppled by his personality, not his positions. The emergence of a new Nixon and the existence of Tricky Dick - themes decried by the commentators - would have been more valid bases on which to choose a President that time around than Nixon's positions with respect to

For the most part there are few clear-cut differences between the major party candidates on the issues: perhaps differences of shading, but few differences of sucstance. Once elected, a President does not make policy decisions in a vacuum. Surrounded by the people, impeded, assisted, or dragged forward by the Congress, a President will make pobcy decisions that will be consensual and pragmatic, rather than a rubber stamp of his campaign platform or speeches. Thus what few substantive differences emerge will be largely blurred by the exigencies of the office. So I look to the debates, the campaign, the speeches to see the men. I am concerned with their frieods, tax payments, intelligence, leadership abilitles, sense of purpose, moral values, sincerity, availability to answer questions, willingness to admit mistakes. These are the isues that will affect me more as a citizen of the United States than their stated views on the Panama Canal Zone and grain suhsidies. Yes, I am looking at the men, not the issues, and I do not apologize for it. You can't hog-tie a President once he is in office, so you had better not buy a pig-in-a-poke,

Costly Election Laws

To the Editor:

Amid all the talk about voter apathy and the predicted poor turnout on Election Day, it is most important that revised so that additional citizens will he encouraged to exercise their right

There are two antiquated laws in New York State that must be changed. Under the New York State Village Law, which governs the state's 556 villages, there are two annual elections -a general election in November and a village election in March.

In Westchester County, where I serve as a Democratic district leader, the cost of village elections ranges from $500 to $5,000, depending on the number of election districts. In other villages in the state the cost can run as high as $10,000. Would It not be more economical and less confusing and time-consuming to the voter if villages would follow the lead of cities. towns, countles, the state and the nation by holding only one election in November?

Another state election law pertains to registration requirements for voters. Presently, voters are permanently registered unless they fail to vote in two consecutive elections, and inasmuch as a great majority of people nnly vote in Presidential elections they forfeit the right to vote unless they re-register. It would be advisable to change the law so that voters will be permanently registered unless they fail to vote in four consecutive elections or primaries. The Board of Elections would cut costs by not having to cancel and re-register voters annually. The above proposals require state legislative action, but they are a necessary step toward cutting unnecessary expenditures and getting out the PAUL FEINEA Scarsdale, N.Y., Oct. 7, 1976

8 Million Burdens

To the Editor:

Not one candidate for the Presidency or the Congress has indicated what he proposes to do regarding the approximately eight million illegal aliensabout 4 percent of our populationwho are in the United States.

They hold jobs that could otherwise be held by either our citizens or welcome and legal aliens. They draw welfare benefits. They send billions of dollars out of the country.

What better way is there to reduce unemployment and welfare payments than to take firm action with appropriate legislation now to correct this problem that was recognized and acknowledged in Washington a long time ago?

Is this not an issue on which every candidate should indicate his position? EDWARD H. ELLIOTT Blue Bell, Pa., Oct. 15, 1976

Debate Alternative

To the Editor: The encounters between your two leaders, Messrs. Ford and Carter, nn TV are not without precedent. In ancisnt times, contending leaders in Southeast Asia met in single combat on elephants. It is said that before such encounters one opponent would say: "Why trouble nur poor wearled soldiers? If we are any good, let the issue be decided by our single combat." The other would accept the challenge. Single combat on elephants or horses is more dignified. Your two supreme contenders should not be subjected to auch torture on TV as they have been nn the last two occasions. SAO SAIMONG

APPEAR before you this evening as one who feels that his civil liberties have been violated. I have been following the Presidential campaigns. and I think I have been deprived of my right to a decent election. The American people will elect a President-a Commander in Chief: a political leader, a spiritual leader. And what will be on the minds of the

Well, as it stands now, they'll be thinking about demagoguery, brainwashing, cardiac lust, freedom in Poland, shacking up, how to get along in Congress on $5 a week, ethnic purity, and the wit and wisdom of Fari Butz.

I've been covering national politics for more than 20 years, and I don't think I've ever seen a pettier campaign, an emptier campaign, a campaign so lacking in a discussion of real issues. I don't recall a campaign so dependent on slips of the tongue, misinterpreted remarks, and accidents.

That's dangerous. But where are the great issues of 1976? The campaign so far has consisted mainly of each candidate saying the other is not qualified.

The Ford people were exultant when Carter described Lyndon Johnson as a deceiver, and hurt himself in Texas. The Carter people were tickled pink when a Carter supporter leaked an I.R.S. report which shows some curiosities in Ford's personal finances.

Success this year seems to be defined as a mistake made by the other guy. Success does not seem to be defined as getting your own point across, but by looking tougher than the other guy.

It gets ridiculous, sometimes. Jimmy Carter went down to Biloxi, Miss., on the Gulf Coast, and said that, next to cotton-pickers, shrimp-pickers were the hardest workers in America.

Jerry Ford was right on his heels. He went down there a week later and declared that, despite what other people may believe, shrimp-pickers were the hardest workers.

Those of us who were there thought we had finally discovered an issue in this campaign: a true difference between Carter and Fnrd-the cottonpickers versus the shrimp-pickers! We thought an issue like that ought also to galvanize the lint-pickers and certainly the nit-pickers of America.

But we were wrong. Gerald Ford, after a quarter of a century in Washington as a moderateto-conservative Republican, surely must be qualified to speak nn the differences between the philosophies of liberalism and conservatism.

Jimmy Carter appears as a self-styled populist, but has accepted advice from orthodox liberals for at least the past year or so. He should be qualified to speak on basic differences.

And yet, we have a campaign in which contention seems more important than exposition, in which daggers and darts seem more important than dreams of the future, in which whatever high road there is in Presidential politics (and there may nnt be much) has been obscured by personal attacks.

Why? Why so much contention? Why so much apathy?

It is true that they have less money this year; that they have less time this year; that the concentration on media means an emphasis on attacks and slogans rather than on substance; that the debates have been more quarrelsame than illuminating.

I think it is more than that. I think that part of our malaise, part of our apathy, is caused by the fact that we are, as voters and citizens, essentially unfamiliar with either candidate. And, possibly, a little suspicious. Gerald Ford has been around a long time, in the Congress. But his party never thought of him as a Presidential, or even a Vice-Presidential possibility. Mr. Ford was presented to us by accident, in the midst of a tragedy. give him high marks for restoring a sense of decency and of humility to the Presidency. He has been a better President than he has allowed people to realize, which is, perhaps, his fundamental problem. But we did not, and do not, think of Jerry Ford as a fire-in-the-belly contender for the Presidency, involved in powerful disputes about critical national issues.

Jimmy Carter is a sweet-talking Southerner who appeared out of the hlue, playing with great skill on our fears and disappointments, plying the politics of reassurance.

Both men are the product of the Nixon-Agnew years. Ford, first hecause of Agnew's disgrace, and then Nixon's disgrace. Carter, because he very skillfully utilized, amnng Democratic primary voters, a sense of disillusionment with Washington and what it has stood for in recent years.

Therefore, I think the fact that Carter is a stranger to os Is extremely important, just as I feel the fact of Ford's accidental Presidency is very important. I wonder if we take them as seriously as they want to be taken, or should be taken. Is it going to get any better before Election Day? We can nnly hope. And we can see if we can figure nut a way to run a better campaign next time-I hope.

John Chancellor is an anchorman and political reporter for NBC News. This is excerpted from a speech on Oct. 13 to the New York Civil Liberties

By Margaret Mead

VER since television began to replace radio, those of us who have lived through the age of radio have wondered what whuld happen if a great politician ever learned to use television as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and Hitler used radio.

With radio, millions were reached where hundreds had been reached before. Hitler stirred them by the fanaticism and hate in his voice; Churchill rallied an almost totally defenseless England; the week after Roosevelt's first fireside chat, over a thousand banks reopened, Radin was powerful and dangerous and it dominated the World War II period,

We speculated what would happen If a politician ever learned bow to handle television, ever learned which camera was on him, how to focus his eyes. If the first to learn was on the side of humankind, we might take another step forward into a world directed toward peace and hope. If a Hitler learned first, now armed with nuclear weapons, it might be the end.

And so we watched. We have seen relatively unknown candidates leap into prominence in the primaries, which could never have been done without the visibility of television. We have seen new concerns for the planet spring up with the view, on television, of the earth from the moon and recently with the first pictures from Mars, Television was clearly a medium with the power to save us-or possihly, wrongly used, to destroy us.

But, as with so many attempts to prophesy the future, no me suggested that instead of a potent charismatic leadership we would end up with a public turned off to politics and to both Presidential candidates, bored to death, deciding ant to vate at all.

Candidates have fought for exposure, maneuvered for exposure, and defeat has been ascribed to too little mnney to give the public more television and better political commercials. But what has happened is that a public insatiable for novelty, a public that never reads the same book, nt sees the same movie twice, has been heaten into boredom, until it responds just as it does to an advertisement that is good the first time, duller the second, unbearable after that.

In the past, we have applauded candidates for the number of whistle stops at which they campaigned, forgetting that only the people who gathered around the rear platform of tha train heard and saw the candidatejust once—a rare opportunity to make up one's mind.

We forget that if we had had to hear Lincoln's Gettysburg Address every day for six weeks, it would have lost all its vigor. That speech was given once and has been drawn on for a century by people who care. Once!

Perhaps Americans will learn to distinguish between their boredom with the repetitions—the inevitable repetitions (for there are only so many important political issues that can be touched on in a campaign) and the candidates' characters and the issues for which they stand.

But the rising tide of turned-off voters is ominous. Very ominous. Hitler came to power in Germany, and Czechoslovakia was taken over hy the Russians-both hy legal means. If most of the people are bored, anything can happen.

There are many ways to destroy even the strongest nation, and we seem to have found one. The press has tried to banish the boredom by little hits of spice: the candidates' views on adultery, the candidates' wives' slips of the tongue. Issues can be met with issues, but boredom is almost impregnable. And people blame the candidates for the attempts to pinorick them awake with titillating trivia; they do not put blame on tha lethargy into which they themselves have fallen.

The future of the world trembles in the balance: the question of what we are gning to do about nuclear proliferation, large-scale export of arms to help helpless peoples kill each other, the export of economic instahility all around the world. In nur continuous, relentless repetitions of what should be fresh experiences for different groups of vnters and are, instead, boredom for millinns-have we discovered a poison that will put us asleep until it is too ::

Only action can rouse us-getting up from that seat in front of the . screen, getting out, getting nut the vote, and feeling like responsible, live individuals again.

All Things to All Men

By William Safire

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 24—The most telling charge made against Jimmy Carter has been that he tries to be "all things to all men." In a nice twist of irony, when Mr. Ford makes the charge, he cautiously tips his hat to the feminists and changes the accusation to "all things to all people."

Most people automatically equate being all things to all men with twofacedness, the domain of politicians who hold that duplicity is the best policy. But let us open our minds to the outrageous, and examine both sides of the coin of popularism.

The phrase itself, and a good exposition of the idea, is rooted in the Bible. Paul of Tarsus faced a dilemma: He wished to commend the ministry of Timothy to the Jews, but Timothy -a converted son of a Jewish mother -was uncircumcised, and thus unwelcome in Jewish areas.

The apostle, in deference to the cultural requirements of the unconverted, ordered Timothy circumcised. In Paul's first epistle to the Corinithians, he wrote: "And unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews... to the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made al! things to all men, that I might by all means save some."

His sound evangelical advice was to get along with the locals: "Give none offense," he advised, ". . . even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved."

In another case, when circumcisinn was demanded as a religious principle rather than a cultural accommodation. Paul firmly drew the line against it. But Benjamin Disraeli, in a novel, took up the words "all things to all men" as a rule for clambering up the greasy pole of politics, and the phrase has carried the connotation of unbridled opportunism ever since.

The modern side of being "all things to all men" has less to do with the abandonment of principle to gain power than with the adoption of unpopular positions. With the development of scientific polling, and with the lengthening of the primary road, politicians have found it possible to determine public reaction on issues well in advance. As a result, we have before us Jimmy Carter, the first pure popularist who has replaced the compass with the mirror.

The most succinct expression of that popularism, and probably the most believable statement of the Carter campaign, came when Mr. Carter proudly asserted how the voters shaped his positions: "What we learned, we gave back to them in a that his pollsters told him would be they wanted, not what we wanted for

Well, a Carter supporter might say, what's wrong with that? Isn't the voice of the people the voice of God? Isn't democracy the expression of the will of the people, and shouldn't public npinion triumph over the elitist fiats of doctrinaire liberals or conservatives who presume to think they know what's best for the penple?

Pupularism says: "Give the people what they want." It is the opposite of political evangelism, which tries to give the people what the evangelist thinks they ought to want. Popularism genuinely tries to be all things to all men; what is good is "compatible" and what is had is labeled "disharmonious." In a popularist society, consensus is in, polarization is out; the popularist leader is the nation's leading.

The trouble with a popularist like Mr. Carter is not necessarily that he is power-driven, or willing to compromise principle to get votes, hut that the philosophy by which he would have to govern is built upon sand. In avoiding real adversaries, it makes no real friends; in his inner-directed way, Mr. Carter resolutely adheres to otherdirected policies. . .

The case against being all things to all men is that all men do not always need what they want or want what they need. "Let 'em eat cake." Marie Antoinette didn't say, to which the popularist adds, "and let 'em have it, too." Campaigning may be promising the popular, but governing is often choosing the least unpopular, fewer services or more taxes, unemployment or inflation, isolation or intervention.

More important, governing is deciding on the basis of what the man at the top thinks is right rather than what goes down best. He need not intone, "I shall not take the popular course" and praise his nwn profile in courage; out he does need to sink his teeth, from time to time, into the apple of

Would Jimmy Carter, in office, cease being all things to all men? Ninbody knows. What we do know is that in his long, long campaign, he has not cace taken a position on a major issue political program that reflected what unpopular with the majority of voters.

Choir boys cheered outside a church in Brooklyn, just before the 11 A.M. mass. A woman passed out complimentary oranges on East 59th Street. Motorists and taxis gave ground without a grudge.

That was the prevailing mood for yesterday's New York City Marathon, a citywide happening that helped Bill Rodgers, a 29-year-old teacher of special educatioo from Meirose, Mass., run 26 miles 385 yards faster thao be bad

The race embodied the city's character, good and bad: Spectators cheered all competitors, carried signs and flags for some, snapped pictures and lined much of the route, particularly a six-mile stretch along Fourth Avenue in Brooklyn and the fioal three miles in Central Park. The police had no off-central Park. The police had no official crowd estimates, but as many as 500,000 people could have caught a glimpse of the runners at one time or another during the midday journey. Some spectators watched out of curiosity, unfamiliar with the mystique of long-distance running. Others enjoyed the neighborhood flavor of the joyed the neighborhood flavor of the race, an event that some skeptics said could not be held outside the controlled confices of Central Park. 2.002 Starters in Race

The lean, lithe Mr. Rodgers had felt he was capable of covering the new

five-borough course in 2 hours 11 minutes. His winning time was 2:10:10 almost 3 minutes ahead of a United States Olympic teammate. Frank Shorter, the 1972 gold medalist at Munich and 1976 silver medalist at Montreal, who finished second, in 2:13:12.

While the beginning of the marathon was far from lonely as 2,002 entrants started from the Staten Island side of the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge, each runner had to prepare himself in his own way for the 26-mile course.

Miki Gorman, a petite 41-year-old Californian, who did not take up running until the age of 33, was the first finisher among the record field of 88 women starters. The 5-foot, 87-pound Mrs. Gorman reached the Central Park finish line in 2:39:11, the 70th-fastest time over all. A total of 2,002 competitors from 2,075 entries left the starting line on the Staten Island side of the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge for the first such citywide race. Overcast, 40-degree weather created what Mr. Rodgers called "ideal conditions for a marathon."

Many of the top competitors, iocluding Mr. Rodgers. Mr. Sborter and 38year-old Ron Hill of Britain, were surprised at how efficiently the race had proceeded, in a city synonomous with traffic tieups. The runners were also stunned by the unexpected — four bridges with fairly steep inclines, cobblestone streets, several sbarp turns and, of course, potholes. "After this, I can do anything," said Tom Fleming of Bloomfield, N.L. who had won this event twice before in Central Park and finished sixth, in 2:16:52.

"The surface was probably the worst I've ever run under," said Ken Moore of Eugene, Ore., a fourth-place finisher at the 1972 Olympics, who was pulled off the course by a policeman in the final 50 yards yesterday because he had no number.

The race attracted entries from 35 states and 10 foreign countries. Politicians, psychiatrists, actors and former professional football players joined the world-class competitors; 312 men and two women finished under 3 bours and

Marathons Attract Runners From All Walks of Life

His birthday happened to fall just before Leonard Harris, writer, former television critic and Central Park runner, was to undertake yesterday's New York City Marathon, and so he asked a close friend to give blm something to time himself in the big race. She gave him a calendar, Mr. Harris, for his part, induced another friend, Jacques D'Amboise, a principal dancer with the New York City ballet to join him in the five-barryish educater and vectors. ballet, to join him in the five-borough odyssey, and yesterday the two men found themselves in the good-natured, panting, motiey back-of-the-pack gang that has made up the tail of every marathon that ever snaked its way through Marathon ruoning, a truly democratic sport, seduces participants from all walks of life.

But while every profession in the city was probably represented in yesterday's mob of 2,002, running has held little attraction for dancers, It's exercise that can do them more harm than good.

But Mr. D'Ambo'se, 42 years old, knowing that a particular kind of youthful classical ballet style requiring intricate use of the pointed foot is now behind him, decided recently he'd like to take up the sport. He also has been busy trying to encourage dance among boys in schools, and he was turned away by the athletic coach at one recently. "He didn't want 1 ballet teacher." Mr. D'Ambolse said, still irked by the incident. "I want to go back and say, 'Listen, I just ran a marathon.'"

The day before the City Ballet left for its three-week appearance in Paris last month, Mr. D'Amboise sent off his entry for the marathon. In the following weeks, he trained by running the streets of Paris in the early morning hours. Since returning to New York, where he lives with his wife and three children in the West 70's, he had practiced longer and longer runs, finally working up to a 20-mile Marathon eve, he and his family ate spaghetti, part of a runner's lore that an 11th hour dose of carbohydrates fuels the muscles the next day.

Yesterday morning he walked across the green pitch at the base of the Staten Island side of the Verrazano Narrows Bridge up to the starting line at the upper deck tollbooth, doing cartwheels, kicks and arm extensions all the way. Borough President Percy E. Sutton of Manhattan fired the starter's gun, and the throng of harriers set out across the span The sky was gray and uninviting, but winds kept sweeping the mists aside, revealing Manhattan, the objective, in the distance. The panorame delighted Mr. number, X5. on it.

At four miles, he said his legs began to get tight. At eight, be picked up the pace, waving his arms exuberantly and letting out what sounded like a rooster's crow. Passing the orange and white sign marking mile number 14, he opened up more and began passing other runners. At 18 miles, however, he found he had lost his ability to pick up

A blaze swept through a Bronx social club, killing 25 young persons and in-juring 24 who jumped from a secondfloor window, their only means of escape. The fire had allegedly been set in the building's only stairwell by an engry patron. The 2:30 A.M. blaze ocin the Puerto Rican Social Club at 1003 Morris Avenue in the Morrisania section. The survivors had been forced to jump, officials said, because a fire escape was blocked by a rolling steel door, apparently installed to deter burglars. [1:6.]

In slow, hesitant streams, relatives despairingly entered the office of the Chief Medical Examiner to identify the victims of the fire. The pregnant mother of a 16-year-old girl wailed in Spanish, she "was a saint to me. Don't tell me that you have taken her away." T1:4-5.1

The injured were taken to five hospitals in the Bronx and Manhattan and to the Nassau County Medical Center in East Meadnw. They suffered burns and several had broken limbs and internal injuries, hospital officials said. Scores of medical personnel worked without a break for up to seven hours. [35:1-2.]

One survivor, Luis Alberto Delgado, grimly related that he had been singing sion bolero when the disaster struck. 'It was as if someone threw a ball of fire into the room," the young musician said, adding "Saddenly there was screaming and panic." [34:3-5.]

An initial check found no New York City Buildings or Fire Department vio-lations pending against the building where the 25 persons were killed. But a more desired inquiry will be made today when city offices open. [35:1-2.]

The death toll of 16 women and 9 men was the highest in a city building fire since 1958, when 27 persons were killed following a blaze at a textile factory at 623 Broadway. [34:5.]

Most New York State voters, according to a New York Times survey; are still liberal on major domestic issues, despite a nationwide and statewide shift rightward. Most voters, the poll found, favor federalization of welfare, national health insurance, Federal job programs and aid to New York City. [1:1-2.]

Business/Finance

Jarred by currency imbalances, divisions between rich and poor member countries and rising waves of protectionism, the European Common Market is in trouble. Some analysts say that the 20year-old union is also threatened by re-viving nationalism and they wonder whether the community can survive as a significant force of European and Atlantic unity. The mood at the Brussels headquarters of the Common Market is gloomy. [45:4.]

Foreign oil prices will rise this winter, according to analysts, and the major question is by how much. Various options being discussed are increases ranging from 10 to 20 percent, and a European diplomat predicted it would probably be 10 percent. Ministers of the Middle East oil-exporting countries are to meet in mid-December, and there are signs of wide disagreement on the size of the increase. [45:1-3.]

The outlook on the credit markets is unclear, and several dealers and analysts are waiting until after the Nov. 2 election before they make any predictions. The bond market last week suffered its worst reverse since May in a sweeping move that depressed prices for fixed-income securities and sharply raised interest rates. [45:6.]

Lest anyone think another dieting

technique is the sole remaining boon of the era of Richard M. Nixon, whose China trip did for acupuncture what Marico Polo's is supposed to have done for gunpowder, a visit should be paid to the Acupuncture Treatment and Reto the Acupuncture resultent and ke-search Center in East 89th Street. The patients there the other day presented an array if human misery far more serious than obesity.

With his pants legs rolled up and his knees and ears studded with long quivering needles, John Polidor looked somewhat ridiculous seated in solitude in one treatment room. He resembled a camper stunned by a stainless-steel porcupine. But he talked favorably of acupuncture as being the one effective treatment be had found to combat a condition of deep depression that over-took him earlier this year.

"I've seen so many doctors," he said.
"At first they thought it was a blood conditioo, then I went to psychiatrists. but it got worse and interfered with my work. This helps. I have better days only, coming here twice a week."

Whether that amounts to a testimonial or not, the physician who directs the center, Dr. Ralph Sepson, an M.D. with two years' experience in the specialty, warns against expecting dramatic results. Indeed, he celebrates the fact that public attention has faded a bit in the last few years. "The faddists have had their day," he says, and the field is better left to the experts, such as the two Chinese physicians who do most of the actual practice at the cen-

"I'don't like what I call 'sad diets,'"

she explains, referring to drastic crash plans. "It's much easier to turn carry foods if you're not hungry, and acupuncture helped control my hungar although it's not an automatic thin

"the mouth point"—the place that he said somehow provides entree to the neal compulsive drive; the other at "the stomach point"—the place said to be capable of interfering with hunger pangs. The tiny needles were disguised with tape, and e bit of pressure before meals was prescribed. Even before meals was prescribed. Even leaning a bit on the telephone expiece during a business call can help crive away the afternoon noshing devil, Mics Berlin testified.

On his desk, Dr. Sepson has an 18-inch-tall anatomical model of a man whose body is marked with a retwer! nf colored trails and pin points. The model resembles a fantasized subway

The model shows the meridians and loci—the channels and treatment points —for acupuncture. Latinists might be offended, but the loci have some charming names, such as "gate of heaven" for a sedation point. The doctur noted that no fully scientific explanation of acupuncture had been devised, but he offered a rather poetic summary of such notions as the needles shunting about a more-balanced energy flow in the body and adjusting acid and alkaline factors, positive and negative forces, the yin and the yang. 'It does not alter pathology," be said.

"It belps treat symptoms." In the waiting room, Joseph Delia, a jewel merchant, told of being surprised, despite his 84 years of life at the onset of arthritis recently in his right leg. Hospitalization did not help much, but weekly acupuncture seems worth it, he said, even at the rate of $60 for the first coosultation and treatment, $30 for each of the next 10 treatments and $20 a visit after that, "Sometimes I can even get rid of this stick," he said, sneering at his cane.

The pain of arthritis and migraine is the most common symptom reported by center patieots, and Dr. Sepson says he has success in helping these cases. Some cancer cases are treated, but not in terms of seeking a cure, only relieving oain. The center is for out-patients, although occasionally ao af-

A few men troubled by impotence have been accepted with the caution that acupuncture is not the fountain of youth. Dr. Lucia Luk and the other Chinese physician have come to recognize such exetic ailments as tennis elbow. The Republicans are worried, however about Senator Owen H. Johnson of Babylon, L.I. Hillard Boss, the Democrat who came within 1,000 votes of beating him two years ago, is running a strong cam-paign with a "Dump Johnson" slogan. Senator Warren M. Anderson of Bing-bamton, the Senate majority leader, will campaign for Senator Johnson in the dis-trict this week.

Also on Long Island, the Republicans have set their targets on a freshman Democratic Assemblyman, Angelo R. Orazio of Albartson. For their part, the Assembly Democrats bope to pick up the seats being vacated by two Republicans, Regis B. O'Neil Jr. and Milton Jonas. Their candidate in the O'Neil district is Mary Rose McGee, the Huntington, L. I.,

In Westchester County, the Democrats feel they bave their best chance to pick up a vacant Republican Assembly seat, the Yonkers seat that Bruce Caputo left to run for Congress. The Democratic candidate, Thomas J. McInerney, is a former Assemblymsn who is running against Cbarles A. Cola, a Yonkers City Council-

Confused by Primary

The Senate Democrats' prospects up-state were confused by the Sept. 14 pri-mary, in which a flamboyant Democratic incumbent, Dr. Fred Isabella of Schenec-tady, was upset by an outspoken conser-vative, John M. Quimby. The Republicans appear confident of winning back this. seat with their candidate, Hugb T. Farley, a local town councilman. Dr. Isabella and Crime and Traffic Congestion a local town councilman. Dr. Isabella remains on the Liberal Party line.

Two Senate races in the Albany area are regarded as extremely close. In one, a former County Court Judge, Arnold C. Proskin, is running a strong and heavily financed campaign against the first-term Democratic incumbent, Howard C. Nolan

In the other, where the Republican incumbent, Douglas Hudson, is not seek ing re-election, the Democrats believe they have a good chance to win the seat with Daniel C. Ashley, the majority leader of the Renssalser County Legislature. But the Republican candidate, Joseph Bruno, the Renssalaer County leader, is equally well-known in the area

The Democrats are optimistic about defeating Senator Martin Auer, a Syracuse Republican. Their candidate, Michael Bragman, is the 36-year-old majority leader of the Onondaga County Legisla-

Hope to Defeat Incumbent

Upstate, the Assembly Republicans hope to defeat an incumbent Democrat from the so-called North Country, K. Daniel Haley. Their candidate: David Martin, is a lawyer who has run an active campaign. The Republicans also hope to defeat first-term Democratic Assembly-men from Syracuse and the Buffalo area where a Democratic sweep of the Buffalo suburbs in 1974 extended the Democrats beyond their natural districts.

In New York City, normally not the location of legislative surprises, the cans dope that vincent Riccio win back the Brooklyn Assembly seat he lost by 700 votes last time to Joseph Ferris. Serphin R. Maltese, the head of the statewide Conservative Party, is running with Republican endorsement for the Queens Assembly seat being vacated by Rosemary R. Gunning. He is favored over the Democratic candidate, Clifford Wilson, and would give the Conservatives their closest link yet to the Legislature, but the Democrats think that Mr. Wilson has a good chance.

The Republicans hope to recapture a once-Repoblican Assembly seat on Man-hattan's Upper East Side, now represented by a freshman Democrat, Mark A. Siegel. Their candidate, Marie F. Vale, has run an active campaign stressing the need to carb crime in the streets.

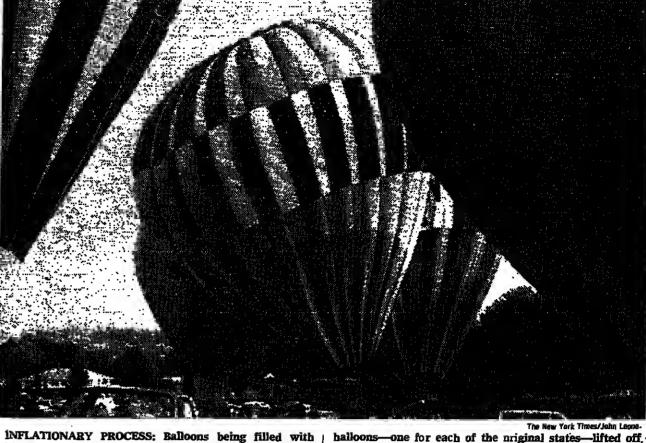

In their effort to give their campaign a unifying theme, the Senate Democrats are spending about $5,000 for 14 placements of two 30-second television spots.

Both spots show Senator Manfred Ohrenstein, the minority leader, urging: "Wherever you live, vote for a Demo-cratic State Senator."

But even the ebullient Mr. Ohrenstein, scrutinizing his "Madison Avenue" debnt on a videotape monitor the other day described the commercials as "experi-ments" and talked about preparing the way for a strong effort two years from now.

The Assembly Republicans will not concede, even privately, that thairs is a lost cause. But they have lagged well behind the others in fund-raising—$75,000, compared with about $175,000 for the Senate Republicans and more than $250,000 for the joint Democratic cam-paign—a reflection, perhaps, of the judg-ment of political gamblers who like to bet on the winning side.

Cornell Women Protest Beauty Pageant as 'Sexist':

ITHACA, N.Y., Oct. 24—About 150 mostly male Cornell University students braved sleet and snow Friday night and matched wits with about an equal number of mostly female demonstrators who tried to block entry to the scbool's first Miss University beauty pageant.

Minor scuffles broke out twice beween the protesters and the fraternity brothers who organized the event, first when about 100 placard - bearing demonstrators tried storming the doors to Cornell's Bailey Hall, and later after the doors were forced open and the protesters briefly took over the stage to denounce the contest as sexist.

Five Cornell safety division officers guarding the stage and the doors were unable to prevent the disruption, although they ajected a few protesters. There were no arrests.

The two-hour pageant, which featured evening gown, talent and swim suit competitions, attracted seven con-testants, including two males in drag. The contest was won by Martha Victo-ria Rosett, a 20-year-old junior ento-mology major and cross-country track star from Chicago, whose only duty as Miss University is apparently to se-lect a Mr. University next spring lect a Mr. University next spring. Miss Rosett, who performed a Hawaiian hula, ssld she thought the pageant was "fun," adding that those opposed to the event should have been monstrating for improved women's athletics facilities.

One of the male contestants, a senior mechanical engineering student, from Washington, said he entered the contest because "all beauty pageants ex-ploit women." He denounced the pag-eant during the talent competition.

The organizers, who said they broke even financially, charged $1.50 admission to the smaller-than-expected crowd, which lustily cheered each contestant. Local merchants donsted prizes, including $100 to the winner.

Among those judging the competition All proceeds were to have gone to were Cornell's lacrosse coach, the owner of a popular campus lunch wagon, and the managers of several popular local tsverns.

A spokesman for Cornell said that while the school would never sponsor a beauty pageant, it could not prevent a student organization from doing so if all profits went to charity.

A militant Jewish organization later asserted that it was responsible for the act, saving: "Tunisia, like all Arab countries, supports the Nazi-style extermination of three million Israeli Jews." A statement from the group, Save Our Israel, also condemned the Conference of Presidents of American Jewish Organizations "for their cowardly silence as the United States withholds arms promised to Israel." The police said the bomb went off at about 3:30 A.M. at the mission, at 40 East 71st Street, scorching the exterior of the building but causing no damage inside.

Cab Rates to Airport Cut Group riding in taxis from Newark International Airport to Manhattan at reduced rates has begun. The new service for airport patrons was started by Dr. William J. Ronan, chairman of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, and Mayors Thomas G. Dunn of Elizabeth, N.J., and Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark, They were joined by business and civic leaders and taxicab regulatory officials of the two municipalities.
Up to four passengers will be able to share a taxi to midtown or lower Manhattan for $8 to $12 each. Rates per passenger are based on the num-ber of riders in the group and the des-tination to any of three zones below 65th Street in Manhattan.

Group taxt riding is a six-month demonstration project sponsored by the Port Authority, Newark and Elizabeth as part of a program to increase utilization of New Jersey's largest and busiest airport by improving ground trans-portation. The cost of the project, to be paid by the Port Authority, was estimated at $170,000.

Beame, at Breakfast Of a Police Group, Is Target of Boos

Mayor Beame, Police Commissioner Mi chael T. Codd and the heads of the Patrol men's and Sergeants Benevolent Associa: tions were booed yesterday when the were introduced at a midmorning police breakfast at the New York Hilton Hotel.

The Jeering by the 1,200 policemen and members of their families took place a the 52d annual religious breakfast of th Shomrim Society, the organization o Jewish policemen. It appeared to be another indication of dissatisfaction by policemen over a tentative labor agreement worked out with the city last week.

Under the proposed settlement, the police officers would receive $1,045 in oach pay but no raise for the current fisca year. They would have to work 10 mocshifts a year but would receive longe weekends off than under the terms reject ed by their union delegates on Sapt. 36 In addition, the P.B.A. would be allowed to choose the reinstatement of 400 dis-missed officers which would avert the start of one-man instead of two-ma, motor patrols, but would slso mean th postponement of certain fringe benefits. In his remarks to the policemen yester day, Mayor Beame said:

"I was advised not to attend this even because I would be booed, and they were right, but I am glad I came.

'I have always had respect and admira tion for the police. My first act, whe I became Mayor, was to provide mor funds for police services. But the fiscastorm wrecked my plans and I was con pelled by fiscal circumstances to maintai vital services with reduced resources. "I had to make fiscal decisions no othe mayor in the history of the country has had to make, and the hardest thing walaying off thousands of city employees. I can't tell you the agony and anguising I went through but it was necessary to save the city. And I again ask for you help in these difficult times."

The Mayor, who had come to the breakfast from the scene of the fire is a Bronx social club, received light at plause after his address.

Button, Button? - Politicians Buying Fewer in Campaign

The Sugared Fix Theires, Souther Pusadent

BY EDITH EVANS ASBURY Collectors of free political buttons are finding poor pickings this year. Restrictions on campaign spending have resulted in smaller orders for buttons, but that is not the only reason for the scarcity, according to Al Cohen, who has been producing political campaign buttons since 1938.

There are no professionals in the campaigns," Mr. Cohen said in an interview yesterday. "The Carter campaign is being run by the Georgia hillbillies they started out with and the Ford campaign wouldn't take anyone connected with Nixon-even the pros that ran his campaign but had nothing to do with him personally. So you have two stupid campaigns and a public that doesn't give a damn."

Question of Credit

"Two days ago I got a call for 2,000 buttons for a cocktail party for a Senatorial candidate," Mr. Cohen said.

"What's 2,000 buttons? Our usual run is 250,000, or half a million. And it takes two to three weeks. Besides, that guy's not paying his bills, so I wouldn't give him any more credit." The credit question is another reason for the searcity of political buttons, according to Mr. Cohen. "They'd be

East European flap," Mr. Cohen said. "In 1972, Nixon's people started out at the beginning with 30 different kinds of Ecanic buttons—Polish, Armenian,

Bulgarian, Irish, Estonian—there are several million of those people, and each one is concerned with his own group. The pros knew that." N. G. Slater, whose company at 22t West 19th Street has been manufactur-ing political buttons since the days or. Herbert Hoover, says his company's business from this year's national earn. paigns is down 25 to 30 percent.

"It's put a bit of a crimp in out, business, but we are selling to local candidates," Mr. Slater said.

National Business Down

The company is still aglow with satisfaction at the feat it performes for the national Democratic campaign and expects to go on making money from it after the hullaballoo of the election has died down.

"We had six plates ready to run of buttons the minute the Vice Presiden. tial candidate was picked," Mr. Slati

Blaze Easy to Extinguish

"It went through that building like a but out of hell," said Battalion Chief John J. Weigold whn directed the firemen lighting what proved a surprisingly easy blaze to extinguish.

"We had knocked most of it down within five minutes and had it under control in about 15 minutes," said the chief, noting that the fire had been conand panic—was on.
"Everybody started acting crazy," said and had not extended to a series of stores on the first floor of the two-story brick

Extinguishing the blaze proved the easiest part of the firemen's job. Beginning at 3 A.M. they began placing the hodies in pine coffins hrought to the scene from city morburies and loading them on a department cherry picker that brought them down one by one to the sidewalk, where five firemen transferred them to vans for the trip to the morgue.

There were only 16 coffins, however, so the last nine bodies were placed in heavy canvas bags before being loaded on to the vans.

Then, at 7 A.M., with a police escort, the four vans left in a convoy for the Medical Examiner's office where the Chief Medical Examiner Dominick J. DiMaio waited to begin the process of mass identification that has been refined in recent years into an assembly line of efficiency

Each of the bodies was examined by five-man team beaded by an assistant medical examiner and including a fingerprint specialist, a photographer, a properry clerk and a stenographer.

From a Slow Ballad to a Sudden Burst of Flames

By PRANAY GUPTE

It was a sad, slow ballad, a song meant to soften the pace of the party, and Luís Alberto Delgado remembered yesterday that he sang it gently and that some of the couples who danced were caressing. And then, he said, there were the flames. "It was as if someone threw a ball of fire into the room," the young musician said. "Suddenly there was screaming and panic."

Jose Echeverria, who was also at the party, remembered Mr. Delgado's bal-

"It was too slow for me to dance to," the 56-year-old Mr. Echeverria said from his bed in Lincoln Hospital where he was being treated for a fractured hand and burns. "I had gone with two male friends and they like to dance slow, so they danced with some winn-en. But me, I chose to sit out the

Grimacing From Pain

"It was harrible, a nightmare, like death had embraced us." Mr. Echeverria said, grimacing at times from pain as a nurse applied same lotion on his burned arms.

One fluor above him, in a small eight-story room, Evelyn Garcia recalled the tragedy animatedly. "It was hell let loose," she said of the situation moments after the flames engulfed the party roum. She was standing by the bar with friends sipping some wine, Miss Garcia said, when the "fire emerged" out of a dcorway of the second floor of the Puertn Rican Social Club.

"People screamed and everyone rushed to the windows and started to break them," she said, speaking in Spanish. "It was pandemonium. In just seconds, it was all an inferno."

From the accounts provided yesterday by Miss Garcia, Mr. Echeverria, Mr. Delgado and several others of the more than 50 people who were present at the private party, a picture emerged of a lively social occasion, a typical neighborhood gathering, that was Edelberto Ramirez, for example, said he went over in the social club shortly after 8 P.M. on Saturday. There was nn live music at that time, be said, noting that the Los Soneros Band, consisting of six musicians, had not been scheduled to play until 11 P.M. The melodies until then, Mr. Ramirez said, were supplied by a jukebox.

"It was typical Spanish music—gua-raché, bolero, fast, slow, you name it," Mr. Ramirez said. "There were more than 100 people there at one point. There was no particular reason for the party; it was just a typical Saturday night event."

Argument Recalled

The mood of the party, however, was marred at one point.—Mr. Ramirez said he could not recall exactly when—by an argument between a man and a

"The man accused the woman of fooling around," Mr. Ramirez said. This ergument was also recalled yes-terday by Jecob Melenniez, a musician in the Los Soneros band.

"I remember we took a break at 1:30 A.M. and this man cante in and started an argument with the woman," Mr. Melendez said. "I remember the man saying: 'Don't wnrry, I'll get you The musician said that the band and put down my guitar on the floor, the fire was at the ceiling." The musician said that like others in the room, he turned toward the windows of the roun.

"I jumped down," Mr. Melendez said, adding that his leg was burt in the fall. Mirian Alicia also remembers jump ing through the second-story window.

"I was dancing—I don't remember with whom—and everynne started screaming and pushing," the 18-yearold wnman, her face scarred by burns, said in her room at Lincoln Hospital "I was just pushed along by the crowd to the window and then I jumped. The next thing I remember, I was in this hospital. Guided Several to Safety

But Carlos Velez, another of those in attendance at the party, said be had guided several men and women to safety through the windows. "I helped seven or eight women at least out." he said.

Mr. Echeverria, too, recalled the confusinn as the flames spread through the 25-hy-50 foot room, whose fire exit was reportedly locked from the inside and whose only staircase was being consumed by flames.

He was asked if he saw people being trampled in the exodus.

"No." Mr. Echeverria said. "Everybody was just pushing to get out."
Miss Carcia said she knew that "several" people had walked toward the restroom just before the flames spread through the party room.

Below on the street, Herbert Johnson, a maintenance supervisor at a nearby medical clinic—he lives across from the social club, which is at 1003 Morris Avenue—was beloing partygoers as they leaped from the windows.

"There was moaning and crying." he recalled yesterday. "Faces were burned. Their hair and clothes stuck to them." Within a couple of bours, when the police and the firemen cleared the debris, Mr. Johnson found out that 25 persons had been killed. But Miss Garcia and Mr. Echeverria, who were cunfined to Lincoln Hospital, and Mr. Delgado, who was treated and released, did not learn about the deaths until moch later when physicians informed them. When she beard the news, Miss Garcia raised a band 'to ber mouth and then she started to cry-

The committee for the truth about the Bronx Terminal Market has the following message to:

Those who rely upon the Bronx Terminal Market as a complete source of food supply;

Those who rely upon the Bronx Terminal Market for their livelihoods;

And the people of the greater New York area who have enjoyed the benefits of our service for the last forty years.

We, The Undersigned, all Tenants and Merchants at the Bronx Terminal Market, are proud to say that the Market is now a productive place to do business. It is clean, sale, well managed, operating efficiently, and it is growing.

We would like you to know that our products are now available in ever increasing

Every channel of distribution is used to make available to you all kinds of foods and related products from in and out of the country. Over the years the distribution of fine products from all over the world has been a source of gratification to the proprietors of the independently owned and individually operated wholesalers and distributors using the Bronx Terminal Market as their base of operations.

Our main goal at the Bronx Terminal Markel is to maintain the Market as the greatest one-stop wholesale regional distribution center for line food products, delivered at the lowest possible cost to the ultimate consumer.

Arol Development Corporation has managed the Market well. Its ongoing constructive program assures the future expansion of the Market.

We have provided more jobs; We are highly competitive: We can and do sell for less: More stores are now occupied; We have more shopping traffic; We have increased sales volume: We have increased product lines; We pay more taxes and are willing to pay our share.

We solicited Arol Development Corporation to save the Market from complete destruction. They undertook an almost impossible job and were successful. Thanks to Arol's management the Market is alive and flourishing. The concept of co-oping the Market was wisely rejected by us, long before the master lease was executed. We again reject the idea of a co-op.

GOTEMBA, Japso, Oct. 24 (AP)—Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., won Japan's Formuls One Grand Prix auto race today while James Hunt of Britain placed third and captured the world driving championship.

Andretti, driving a Lotus, had the pole position in the 73-lap, 200-mile race that was delayed 1 hour and 39 minutes by rain and fog. Hunt, in a McLaren-Ford, took an early lead and held it until the 62d lap, when he dropped back.

Niki Lauda of Anstria, who had led the competition for the driving crown most of the year, quit after the first lap. He had gooe into this final race with a 3-point lead over Hunt. Hunt received 4 poiots for third place and took the title from the Austrian, 69-68. Too Mach Mist for Lauda

Shortly after the race started, Lauda drove his Ferrari into the pits and said:
"It's too misty. Sometimes I couldn't

Hunt was timed in 1:44.00.06. The victory was timed in 1:44:00:06. The victory was Andretti's second in Grand Prix racing. He won the South African event in

Rain that started last night still was falling at race time. Officials first an-ounced a 15-minute delay, largely be-cause of patches of fog that hung over parts of the 2.615-mile course over the foot of famed Mount Full. When the competition finally got under way, a light rain was falling. The racers sent up hage streams of water from the wet course in the early laps. About the midway point however, the rain stopped and by the finish the sun was trying to break through.

In fourth place at the finish was Alan

Jones of Australia, driving a Surtees. Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland, in a Ferrari, placed fifth and Gunnar Mis-son of Sweden was sixth driving a

1,192 men and 30 women under 4 Kenneth A. Gibson, the Mayor of

Newark, crossed the finish line 4 hours 34 minutes after he had started. "All I kept thinking about in the closing stages was, please let me fin-ish." said the Mayor, who received a rousing reception. Robert Earl Jones, the 71-year-old actor and father of James Earle Jones, was determined to finish "if it takes me until 7 o'clock at night." Mr. Jones, running his first marathon, surprised himself by crossing the finish line at 5:30 P.M.—moder seven hours.

"I'm so happy," said the lanky actor, who had played Robert Redford's mentor, Luther, in the Academy Award-winning film, "The Sting." "My head was clear, and I enjoyed it. I just needed another pair of legs."

Pekka Paivarints, a 27-year-old Finnish Olympian, was the early leader, clicking off brisk 4:45 miles through the first five miles that had race organizers dreaming of a possible world

"He did that before in Japan," said the 29-year-old Mr. Shorter, who preferred to run in a 10-man pack with Mr. Rodgers-about four blocks behind Mr. Paivarinta, in Brooklyn, "He died then, and he died today."

Mr. Shorter, from his Olympic exploits, was the most recognizable fig-ure in the race. Shouts of "attaboy Frank," and handmade signs ("All the Way Frank") offered encouragement. But it was the 5-foot 8-inch, 130-pound Mr. Rodgers and Chris Stewart, a 30year-old stamp salesman from Britain, who passed Mr. Paivarinta at the 12mile mark.

If any point along the way became New York's Heartbreak Hill, it was the Queensboro Bridge, and not simply hecause of the view below.

"We were coming off a long, flat stretch onto a tairly steep inchie Mr. Rodgers, who pulled away from Mr. Stewart going up the hridge. "And the iroo gratiogs probably made it difficult. I sensed he was laboring there."

Once in front, Mr. Rodgers relaxed. At 18 miles, he passed Richard Traum, a 35-year-old competitor who has an artificial leg and who had started at 6:49 A.M.

"Attaboy Dick," Mr. Rodgers shouted co Mr. Traum, who was to finish his first marathon in 7 hours 51 minutes -9 minutes under his eight-hour goal.

It was a satisfying victory for Mr. Rodgers, who averages about 140 miles of running a week and says he would run more if he had the time. He woo the 1975 Bostoo Marathon and qualified for the 1976 Olympics, but bobbled bome a disappointing 40th.

Of yesterday's race, Mr. Shorter said: "Bill just ran strong all the way through. I tried to maintain the condition I bad from Montreal, but I don't think I was that sharp."

Simpson said Bert Jones had thrown a touchdown pass to put the Balti-more Colts ahead of the Jets over in Shea Stadium. It was pleasant to reflect that in less than three seasons, young Jones had moved past Earl Morrall into second place on the all-time list of Baltimore passers. Going in against the lets, he was only 34,000 yards behind John Unitas.

Playing catch-up, Morton threw an interception to Pittsburgh's J. T. Thomas. This set up a field goal, giving the Steelers a 10-0 lead at halftime. Some girl from Avis sang about how hard they tried. Between halves-there was talk about Julius Erving.

An illegal procedure call against the Giants infuriated John Hicks. He stomped and stormed around, and when a large playmate clutched him about the middle and lifted him off his feet, he kicked like a mad cyclist-

A femoled punt gave Pittsburgh the ball on the Giants' 23-rard line, and then it was 17-0. The game had started before a capacity crowd but now the camera showed many empty seats. Another field goal made it 20-0 for Pittsburgh. What specialors remained did a lusty cheer when some Steelers jumped on Morton. Pittsburgh's 15th penalty draw laughs. Against token resistance, the Steelers made it 27-0. CONY announced Triniton Plus and nobody believed it.

Arnsparger Future

By MICHAEL KATZ

EAST RUTHERFORD, N. J., Oct. 24— There were 6,657 "no-shows" today for the Giants' second game in their new stadium—and that's not counting the Giants' offense, which failed to show anything in a 27-0 loss to the Pittshurgh Steelers, the team's seventh straight without a victory this National Football League season.

Coach Bill Arnsparger could well be a "no-show" for the Giants' game here next Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles. Andy Rohnstelli, the team's director of operations, said he would sit down "in the next day or two" with Wellington Mara, the club president, and Tim Mara, the vice president and today?" Robustelli said after the game in the quiet Giant locker room. "I'm saying, 'No.' The ball game's over, we're not going to come in bere and say, 'Hey, coach, get out.' At this point, I've got to sleep on it."

When he wakes up tomorrow, there's good chance Robustelli bimself could be the coach. The Giants, who started this season with the belief that Arnsparger's rehuilding program should begin showing itself with victories, played perhaps their poorest game offensively this poor season.

Craig Morton, returned to quarterback by Arnsparger after a game on the hench, drew most of the boos from the rainy-day crowd of 69,783. Morton frequently missed open receivers, threw some passes poorly and others not at all, and called some rather conservative plays.

But the quarterback was not all to hlame. Blockers missed assignments and receivers dropped enough passes for Rohustelli to complain, "there's a lackadaisical approach somewhere to catching the football."

The Steelers, winning only their third game in seven starts, did not look like Super Bowl champions, either. The Super Bowl champions' defense was, of course, at least partly responsible for the Glants' net offense of 151 yards (68) by ground, 63 by air) and for the second game in a row Pittsburgh did not allow a touchdown.

But the Steeler offense, operating without Terry Bradshaw all game and without Lynn Swann for most of it. mounted only one successful long drive, going 80 yards for its first touch-down late in the second period. Franco Harris, rushing for more than 100 yards for the 22d time in his N.F.L. career, carried 27 times for 106 yards and two touchdowns on 1-yard plunges. Last week, with Mike Kru-czek, a rookle from Boston College tak-

DALLAS, Oct 24-The Dallas Courhoys, winning their sixth game in seven tries, tucked the Chicago Bears away today, 31-21, and then began to wait. They were waiting for tomorrow night's game in Washington, where the Red-skins will take on the St. Louis Cardinals, and also on Roger Staubach, their star quarterback, who has a fractured bone in his passing hand. Staubach, crushed in a rough tackle by Mike Hartenstine of the Bears, has a cracked metacarpel bone behind the knuckle of the little finger according to Dr. Marvin Knight, the team physician, who was busy after the game giving the Cowboys swine flu shots.

It will not be known until Wednesday if Staubach can squeeze the football well enough to play next Sunday against the Redskins in Washington. against the Redsens in Washington.

Nets Weary Of Traveling After Defeat

BY PAUL L. MONTGOMERY

SEATTLE, Oct. 24-Although they are only in the first weary weekend of their first National Basketball As-sociation season, the New York Nets are already discovering the rhythms of traveling in a new league.

Their three-game, three-day West Coast swing has been a succession of early-morning airports, afternoon naps and evening games against players most had never seen before.

"Three games in three nights on the Coast is a difficult way to start a season," said Kevin Longhery, the Nets' coach. "It's a tough situation, definite-

Tonight, they complete their trip against the SuperSonics here.

In Portland, the crowd was 12.626, a record for the arena. The game was sold out before Julius Erving's sale to Philadelphia, but the team sold 500 standing-room tickets last night, proof of Portland's enthusiasm over the rebuilt Trail Blazers.

Bengal Defense Excels In 27-7 Defeat of Oilers

Dan Pastorini of the Houston Oilers has had a highly forgettable eight days. His team was upset by the San Diego Chargers last week, and shortly thereafter Pastorini was shaken up in a driving accident.

Yesterday Pastorini, one of the prom-lsing young quarterbacks in the Nation-al Football League, was battered again, this time in a 27-7 loss to the Cincin-nati Bengals at the Astrodome in Rous-pating the Cincinton. The game meant first place in the American Conference's Central Divi-

The Bengals also scored on a 7-yard pass from Ren Anderson to Isaac Cur-tis, a 14-yarder from Juhn Reaves to Bruce Coslet and field goals of 34 and 28 yards by Chris Bahr.

Houston, which like Cincinnati had entered the game with a won-lost record of 4-2, broke the shutout on Ronnie Coleman's 69-yard punt return early in the fourth quarter.

AT SAN FRANCISCO- San Franisco's defense kept the 49ers atop the Western Division by holding the Falcons to only 44 yards from scrimmage. Scoring their second shutout in their last three games (they allowed the New Orleans Saints 3 points last week), e 49ers sacked Kim McQuilken, the the 49ers sacked Aun Mediants. San Francisco scored on a safety, two field goals by Steve Mike-Mayer and a l-gard plunge by Kermit Johnson.

Rams 16, Saints 10

AT NEW ORLEANS-The Rams' refolving-quarterback system was at fork again. Pat Haden replaced Ron Revorski in the last quarter and on his light throw completed a 40-yard pass to Harold Jackson for a touchdown and he winning points. Jaworski, who in then had been replacing the injured somes Harris, had moved the Rams only 19 total yards in the second and Gird quarters. AT ORCHARD PARK, N. Y .-- The Bills suffered a double loss. Their starting quarterback, Joe Ferguson, will be out for the season with fractures in his lower back, incurred when he was tackled while on a 9-yard run in the second quarter. Steve Grogan led the New England victory, throwing a 9-yard scoring pass to Russ Francis and running 10 yards for a tonchdown. Buffalo trailed by 26-9 in the fourth quarter but made the score close in a game marked by fumbles, six by the Bills and five by New England. O.J. Simpson gained 110 yards nn 25 carries, becoming the second-leading rusher in league history, with 8,609 yards, surpassing Jim Taylor, Jim Brown is first with 12,312.

Browns 21, Chargers 17 CLEVELAND-Briso Sipe completed 23 of 28 passes—12 in a row for a team record in the first half—to lift the Browns to victory. Sipe, who earlier had hit Reggie Rucker with a 3-yard scoriog pass, brought the Browns back from a 17-14 deficit in the final quarter. In an 82-yard drive, he completed five straight passes, in-cluding a 10-yard scoring strike to Oscar Roan. Greg Pruitt, who scored Cleveland's second touchdown, left the game in the second period with an ankle injury after having gained 40 yards on the ground and caught six passes for 60 yards. Pruitt is not ex-

But, indeed, it took Garo Yepremian's 29-yarder to end Miami's three-game losing streak. Dick Anderson finished Tampa Bay's latest bid to win a game by intercepting a pass by Steve Spurrier with 13 seconds to go.

Broncos 35, Chiefs 26 AT KANSAS CITY-Defenses took most of the day off, but twice Denver stopped Kansas City on the Broncos' 1-yard line. The Chiefs' specialty teams weren't very special, as Rick Upchurch of the Broncos returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdowo and brought back a kickoff 64 yards to set up another score. Steve Ramsey had thrown two touchdown passes for Denver be-fore leaving with a slight concussion in the fourth quarter.

Musso, called the Italian stallion when he starred for Alabama, was in the game because Paytoo was not. The league's leading ground gainer twisted an ankle. The Cowboys had held him to 2.4 yards a rush, or 41 yards. Payton will play next Sunday when the young Bears, who have a murder-ous schedule, meet Minnesota. Their won-lost record is now 3-4, and they were outclassed against the Cowboys, their quarterback, Bob Avelliai, coming up with only 17 net yards passing. He was sacked four times as the Cowboys blitzed linebackers and safeties, which is not their custom. "We could afford the risk," explained Larry Cole, the defensive tackle.

It was a big game for Preston Pear-son, the running back and receiver who caught six passes for 90 yards two, from White, for touchdowns, He was playing after weeks of injury, and at the end he did not know if he had been dismissed from the game for throwing punches at Waymond Bryant, the linebacker who had tackled him pushing on the Beer Lyrend line roughly on the Bear 1-yard line.

of Nick Fotiu called the Ranger wing a "goon," Potiu became enraged and jumped up oo the glass as if to pursue the spectator.

The insults were also directed at Carol Vadnais, a Ranger defenseman, who had an unusually bad night and was on ice for three Canuck goals.

"They were saying, Go back to Boston, Vadnais, you stink," said Potiu. Then when we get a goal they cheer. That's phony. We're in a slump; things help us. I don't understand the fans.
Why boo the players? We lose, you lose, too. We win, you win, too. Be with us. If they don't like it, go see the Islanders."

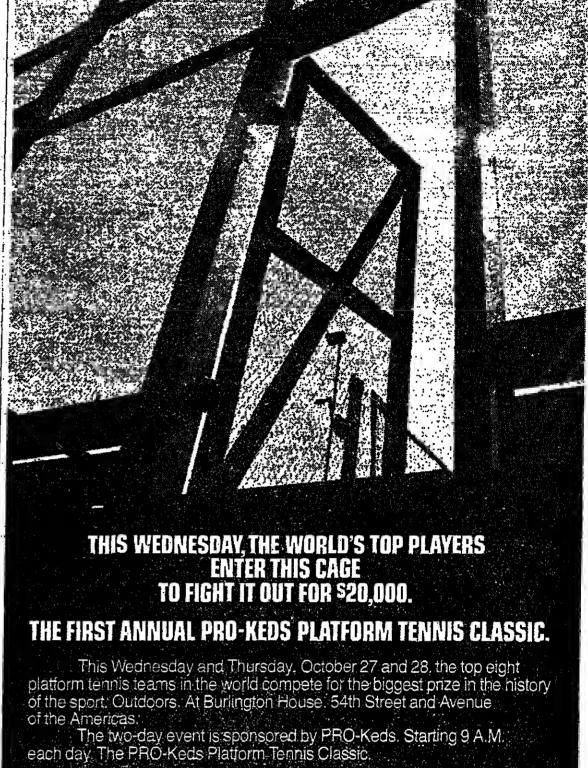

Rangers Lack Organization

Struggling to maintain some sort of order in their play, the Rangers stuck to their positions for just the first 10 minutes of the game before degeoerating into their usual packlike, roaming style. They were in most glaring need of organization in trying to get the puck out of their own end and in trying to take advantage of open spaces during power plays.

Although they scored two power-play goals in the first period, on a rebound shot by Rod Gilbert and a stuff shot by Phil Esposito, the Rangers completely neglected to use the point men and thus wasted three power-play opportu-nities in the second period, as their clustering around Cesare Maniago, in the Vancouver goal, failed.

For each of the Rangers' power-play goals in the first period, the Canucks had an answer. First Dennis Ververgaert took the puck from a teammate, Mike Walton, and charging past Mike McEwen and Nick Fotiu, emerged in the slot area. He shot past Gilles Gratton, who was making his fourth con-

Dorsett Record Sets His Coach Talking

By GURLLON S. WHITE Jr.

Pittsburgh's coach, Johnny Majors, a man with some personal knowledge of disappointment in Heisman Trophy voting, said yesterday: "It's not just that Tony Dorsett ahould win the Heisman Trophy. He will win the Heisman Trophy."

Trophy."
That confidence is understandable, coming just a few hours after Dorsett had established a major college career rushing record with 5,206 yards. It is also understandable after the flashy way Dorsett went the last few yards needed to hreak Archie Griffin's year-old mark of 5,177 yards. Dorsett, need-ing four yards for a record, ran his left end for 32 yards and a touch-idown in the fourth quarter against Navy Saturday.

Bell Is the Competition

Majors learned 20 years ago that much can happen between the achievements on the gridiron and the Heisman voting by "experts." As an all-America back at Tennessee, Majors was one of *a number of prime candidates for the Heisman in 1956, his senior season. He beat out some other obvious candidates such as Tom McDonald and Jerry Tubbs of Oklahoma, Jimmy Brown of Syracuse, Ron Kramer of Michigan, John Brodie of Stanford and Jim Parker of Ohio State. But Majors finished second in the Heisman voting to Paol Hor-nung, quarterback of a poor Notre Dame team, as Hornung became the only Heisman Trophy winner from a up 68 yards before leaving and has 1,076 on the season, Dorsett, who ran 180 yards as he led undefeated Pitt to a 45-0 rout of Navy, increased his season total to 1,072 yards. Despite the loss of Bell, Southern California also won easily, beating Oregon State, 56-0.

Majors said that if Dorsett hadn't set the record when he did, he would have been forced to wait a week to achieve it against Syracuse. Dorsett had just scored the second of his three touchdowns for a 31-0 lead early in the fourth quarter. Then Pitt's mighty defense held Navy oo a fourth-and-1 play and the Panthers took over on the Middles' 43. Pitt's first-string of-fense got its 13th and last chance to

Majors said: "I told the offense this was its last chance. I wanted to play the second striogers to give them work. Tony knew it when he went in."

Dorsett was 14 yards short of Grif-fic's record wheo the drive began. He picked up 11 yards on the next two plays and then broke the big one for the record. He finished with two other college records—931 carries in a career and he became the first man to rush more than 1,000 yards in each of four little off the Main Stem. Maybe just nice. Has that word gone out of style?" The first stop, for pretheater cocktails, was the bar of the Park Lane Hotel, 36 Central Park South (with another 58th Street entrance). Up one flight of curving, red-carpeted stairs. you're in a tasteful oasis with wood paneling, brimming drinks ($2.75 for a dry vodka martini) and a two-way win-dow view, from the bar, tables and banquettes, that's a pip. Southward, yellow-leaved trees sway in the hotel courtyard. Looking oorth, into the elegant dining room (drinks here too, if you like) you see towering park trees in a spectacular frame of tall, draped windows.

The entertainment bonus is Joan St. James's piano, in a nearby dining room corner that acoustically makes for sub-dued listening from the bar room. Even dued listening from the bar room. Even so, when she gets going (6 P.M. to midnight, Tuesday through Saturday), it'a a sound like a mini-orchestra, as Miss St. James breezes through modern ballads, singing a bit, and Broadway show scores. Her best numbers the other evening were "Dancing in the Dark" and "Begin the Beguine."

'Seven-Per-Cent Solution' Movie An Exhilarating Collector's Item

After two months in virtual seclusion, Sherlock Holmes summons his old friend and biographer, Dr. Watson, to his rooms in Baker Street. Dr. Watson, settled family man that he has become, is shocked by both the manner and the appearance of Holmes. He has always been thin hut he is oow rail-like. Worse, though, is Holmes'a behav-ior. Either he has become a lunatic or he has stumbled nnto the grandest criminal conspiracy of his

His door bolted against the evil lurking outside, Holmes strides about his untidy, gas-lit study talking in disjointed fashioo about a certain Professor Moriarty, a gen ins, a ohilosopher, an abstract thinker, a fiend of fiends whose existence Hnimes has been in the process of deducing for the last two months. The name of Moriarty means nothing to Watson.

"There's the genius and the wonder of the thing," exclaims Holmes, his eyes lighting up like the windows in an empty house one suddenly discovers to be haunted. "The man pervades Lon-don, the Western world, even," he says, "and oo one has ever heard of him!" At which point Watson ootices the empty syringe oo Holmes's desk. His friend has passed into the uncharted outer reaches of cocaine madness. Watson must act at once.

The adventure is called "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution," which, as adapted by Nicholas Meyer from his best-selling novel and directed and produced hy Herbert Ross, is nothing less than the most exhilarating entertainment of the film year to date. Mr. Meyer and Mr. Ross have taken a few small liberties with the book (which are all to the good) hut the essectial

That is that Watson, in a desperate effort to save Holmes's lite, must somebow get Holmes in Vi-enna for treatment hy a new young doctor named Sigmund Freud, and that Holmes and Freud, two of the greatest minds of their time, join forces to solve a diaholical plot involving a heautiful, red-baired musical comedy star, an arrogant, dishoonrahle German haron, an amorous Turkish pasha and a great train chase through Austria to the very horders of the Ottomao Empire.

The film, which opened yesterday at the Plaza Theater, is popumovie-making at its most stylish. It's simultaneously cootemporary io its seosibility and faithful the courtly mood and decent spirit of the Sir Arthur Conan Doyle nriginals. It's also one nf the most handsome evocations of a vanished period (circa 1890) since "Murder on the Orient Ex-terms of performances.

Nicol Williamson creates an entirely new Sheriock Holmes within oor memories of all the old ones, a man of incomparable mental bril-liance who walks the world pur-aued by the hallucinations of his addiction. Alan Arkin is the good Dr. Freud at the beginning of his career, somewhat shy of manner, immensely kind, and a little selfconscious about discussing the latest theories that have been getting him into hot water all over Vienna. Laurence Olivier is marvelous as Professor Moriarty, an extremely tentative, timid old fellow to be such a tycooo of crime, and Van-essa Redgrave is the unfortunate lady whose beauty drives mad those meo who are rich and power-

The particular revelation of "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" is Robert Duvall, one of America's best actors, who plays the English Dr. Watson with such wit and control that it's difficult to believe he's ever played an American with equal conviction. It'a a very funny performance, and very important performance, and very important to the overall shape and cohesion

Not since John Hustoo's "The Man Who Would Be King" and Sidney Lumet's "Murder on the Orient Express" has there been a new film that manages so successfully to recall the innoceot qualities one associates with pre-World War II movies without being simple-minded or instant camp. The initial credit must go to Mr. Meyer, whose oovel is a fine piece of literary fooling, but Mr. Ross has been equally clever and disciplined in ealizing its screen potential. It's hy far the best work he's done to

"The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" has been rated PG ("Parental Guidance Suggested"), which is a way of alerting parents of small children to a fuzzily photographed primal-scene conclusion, some slightly right marish scenes involving Folunce's cogging cure and a ing Holmes'a cocaine cure, and a sequence in a Viennese bordello that, when I was 5 years old, I would have instantly recognized as a lively, eccentric hotel.

By MEL GUSSOW Special to The New York Times

NEW HAVEN - With the plays of Sam Shepard it is the withheld information and the ellipsis as much as the revealed truths and the ramhunctious humor that hold us. In "Suicide in B Flat," which receotly joined the fall repertory at the Yale Repertory Theater — it is one of four new Shepard plays scheduled for production at various theaters this season - the author is even more mysterious than usual. This is Mr. Shepard at his most tantalizing.

A jazzman named Niles has killed himself. Or has he? As Lawrence Wolf, at the piano, his back to the audience, sits on stage playing jazz of his own composition, the comedy begins.

Two humbliog detectives are investigating the "crime." They are as inept as Harpo and Groucho looking for purloined jewels. There is an outline of a dead man taped to the floor, and Joe Grifasi tries the outline oo for size. Repeatedly be pratfalls, attemptiog to farce his limbs to fit the ungainly pos-ture. Meanwhile Clifford David, as the other government operative, cocks his hat with his thumh and then shuffles classified documents as if they were a deck of marked cards. Soon the stage is filled with metaphorical marked cards-false leads and dead-end guesses. The jack-in-the-box laughter mounts; this is Sam Spade down the rabbit hole trying to find Alice.

The conundrum of a stnry is never fully deciphered, but with Mr. Shepard, one learns not to worry about plot coherency. He deals oot in linear movement but in moods and impressions. This is a jazz dream world, by the author's intention, a new dimension (actually two plays occupy the same Niles's apartment, at the same time). He gives us hints and chies to his caper. As William Hickey, playing a cadaverous saxo-phonist, warns, "It takes a while to attune your ears to the frequency we're playing in."

Mr. Shepard's plays have their own heartbeat, an idiosyncratic sensibility that is both primitive and sophisticated. Mr. Shepard is a playwright of the American West, the open spaces, whose plays often occur in locked, tight rooms. It is the collision of myth and reality that fascinates him. "You can't kill a myth," says one of the characters, but you can wound him with arrows and insults. Io Shepard plays, myths are pummeled by civilizatinn. In his receot work, the author has become a critic of our culture, of the demands that it makes on the artist (whom he sees as a kind of natural hero). In "The Tooth of Crime." Hoss, the rock singer, is forcibly replaced by the younger Crow; it is a commentary on the nbsnlescence of stars. In "Geog-raphy of a Horse Dreamer," the

A play that deals in moods and impressions

The Cast SUICIDE IN B FLAT, a mestorious outriere 5/ Sam Sheperd, Directed by Wall Jones, music composed by Lawrence Wolf; schling by Mi-chael Yeargan; costumes by Jess Goldstein-lighting by Paul Galla; production stage manager, Frank S, Torok, Presented by the Yale Reportory Theater, Robert Brustein, di-roctor, At New Hawth, cowboy, a free spirit who can predict horse races, is thought-controlled, robbed of his creativity hy gangsters. In "Suicide," Niles (who is playing dead just as he once "played alive"), speaking for himself and the other mythological figures that populate Mr. Shepard's landscape, says, "We've all lnst our

Instead of giving us a pontificating poet or philosopher. Mr. Shepard spotlights the buffood on the barroom floor. He buffaloes us with comic-strip comedy. The de-tectives are bogus Bogarts. Mr. Hickey is a lonesome fugitive from the Dorsey Brothers hand. Twisting like a reed, he blows his saxand no sound emerges. This is "visual music," he explains, and that lahel can act as an apt description of Mr. Shepard'a art. He treats our eyes to visual music, our ears in a concatenation of word

Mr. Shepard's theater has its own inner orchestration. It oeeds and, in Walt Jones's production, it finds, the right jazz combo of ac-tors tuned in to the author's rhythm. The play, though carefully arranged, has to seem like an improvisatioo. All the actors are autheotic, and Mr. Grifasi is something more. His detective is the essence of the cheap hoodlum; the playwright sees a symbiosis between cops and robbers. In common with cowboys, rock stars and jazz men, they are fallen heroes oo Mr. Shepard's magical silver screen.

garde composer with an international reputation, and he has been an active figure as conductor, edu-cator and scholar in the promulga-tion of new music. The resources of the New Eogland Conservatory have been thrown open to the visi-tors, and most of the concerts will be given in the heautiful old Jor-dan Hall.

Since it was founded in 1922 (the first concerts were given in Salzherg in 1923), the ISCM has hero a major force for oew music. Composers with new ideas always find it hard to get performances by Establishment deganizations and musicians. Thus a group, among them Arnold Schoeoberg, Alhan Berg and Anton Webern, got together to form an organization hy which only oew music would be played. Through the years ISCM has presented the world premieres of some major works of this century. Cousider: Bartok'a first and secood Piano Concertos, Berg's Violio Concerto, Honegger's "King David," Kodály's "Psalmus Hun-garicus." Schoenberg's "Erwartung." Stravinsky's Octet, Webern's

Five Pieces for Orchestra. It may be that there are oo present-day equivalents of Stravinsky, Schoenberg and his group, Bartok and the other heroes of the period after World War L Certainly the ISCM festival got off to a dispiritiog start this afternoon with its Canadian music. This, incidentally, was the only program with music entirely by composers of one country. All others will be mixed, One does not expect master pieces all the time. Masterpieces do not come up that often, and there are few in any decade. But one had hoped for more than the confirmity heard from the Cana-dians. The last few days have brought forth oew ideas, and young composers everywhere have started to wriggle out of the straitjacket in which Boulez, Babbitt and the other major post-serialists bad coofined them. There was little of the oew spirit in this afternoon's doctrinaire music, which looked back to the 1950's

The program consisted of Serge Garant's "Offrandes III," Bruce Mather's "Madrigal II," Robert Aitken's "Lalita: Shadows II." Gilles Tremblay's "... Le sifflement des vents, porteus de l'amour, ..." and Murray Schafer's "Arcana" (Even the titles are doctrinaire.), A fine group of musicians came down from Canada in play the music, and Messrs. Garant, Mather and Aitken participated in their own and others' music: Garant conducted; Mather was at the piano and Ait-ken, a brilliant flutist, played his own "Lalita."

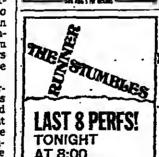

This was a chamber concert, with small groups of instrumentalists backed by heavy percussion and, in the Tremblay piece, amplifica-tion effects. All of the writing stems one way or another from the serial movement. It was athematic music, highly derivative, full of the instrumental tricks of the interna-tional avant-garde of the 60's. Two nf the pieces used sopranos, and one heard the expected hummings, wide leaps, dissected syllables, vocalizations and the other devices familiar from Schoenherg to Bab-

Questions: Is all of the Canadian avant-garde so slavishly reliant on these faded formulas? Is this really typical of Canadian composers? Aren't there some around who write a different kind of music? If the international jury has selected works of this nature from all the countries, we are in for a grim

that in some ways, with its ebbs and flows, recalls that old classic of the modern dance, Doria Humphrey's "Water Study."

The music is aomewbat oebulous, although its aqueous impressions are suitable enough. Miss Posio's choreoggraphy has a strong sculptural plas-tique, and uses sequential, metachronal movement to sensitive effect. Even though the shape of a seascape is inevitably, as it wer, romantic, she has imposed some strong element of structure to the work. It was also very well danced, with a surging ensemble feeling, but I wonder, in the ultimate run, how valuable this kind of scene-painting - could it be called 'program choreography,"? — really is.

The weekend also included the company's premiere of "A Soldier's Tale," which Mr. Feld originally choreographed for American Ballet Theater in 1971, and the seasoo's first performances of another Feld ballet, "The Beal McCop". Real McCoy."

"A Soldieer's Tale" is more a dance vignette than the narrative dancedrama Stravinsky and his librettist, C. F. Ramuz, originally conceived. No matter. Mr. Feld completely discards the written text, with its story of Devil. Soldier, Princess and violin, and shows us an abstraction of the horrors of war and the lucrative wages of whoredom. A young soldier and his colleagues are cheated by a Pimp and his two whores, and then killed in battle. There is little to the work but a disarmingly persuasive and dramatically pungent series of dance images-the Pimp and his myrmidons awaiting their prey, the soldieres advancing o a battlefield, and the whole business of wholesale death and sleazy sex. It is a brilliant little

It is excellently danced in this new productioo, Edmund LaFosse is all brave innocence as the Soldier, Eliot Feld insinuatingly repeats his part of the Pimp, while Mona Eigh and Mi-chaela Hughes are effectively blowsy whores. Mr. Feld is also at the tnp of his form in "The Real McCoy," a ballet that celebrates above all the definess of Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly, and the effortlessness of that particular, if shallow charm, which characterized their dancing. It is a work that grows

This weekend was quite a time for dance—at last the season has gutten off the ground. There-was the Feld, the Joffrey Ballet at the City Center 55th Street Theater, the Pennsylvania 'Soldier's Tale' Is Dramatic. Brilliant and Persuasive Ballet at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, the Louis Falco Company at Brooklyn College, and a great deal more. In how many places can one be, as Bisbop Berkeley ooce philosophicaliv mused.

On Saturday I was chez Joffrey, catching up with some works, seeing a new cast in Ruthanna Boris's "Cakewalk," and the season's first performance of Jerome Robbins's "New York Export: Op. Jazz." When I first saw "Cakewalk" in London in 1952—it was already a year old—I oever expected it to last until 1976, but it has, and, if anything, improved with the keeping. Lisa Bradley, Denise Jackson, Berissa Welles, Robert Thomas, William Whitener, Diane Orio and Pamela Nearhoof, most of them comparatively new to their roles, led "Cakewalk" with the right jaunty abandon, and it "New York Export," a work remarkably enough 18-years-old, the company gave this new-old classic, with just the correct zip, style, couth and coolness.

With 3 Guytarysts, Rocks at Palladium

Originality is at a premium in cootem-porary rock. One can use only so many melodies and chord combinations without crossing the borderline to jazz, and the polyrhythmic elaborations of the big beat ooe finds in New Orleans rhythm-andblues or reggae seem to be too difficult for most rock rhythm sections to play, or for most rock fans to respond to. The oumber of guitarists who can deliver authuritatively the riffs Keith Richard learned from Chuck Berry is reaching massive proportions.

Lynyrd Skynyrd, a band that has been growing more and more popular during the past few years, boasts three guitarists, all of them capable of playing rhythm or lead, none of them distinctive. The ance at the Palladium on Saturday eveband's strengths include a certain South- ning, the reviewer was torn between an ern authenticity and energy; they speak affection for the group's feeling and mn-the language of rock-and-roll idiomatical—mentum and a profound tedium caused by ly and with gusto. Another Matter Be-Bop Deluxe, the English rock quin-tet that npened Lynyrd Skynyrd's sbow, is another matter. Bill Nelson, who plays lead guitar and sings and composes the band's material, is an original who has combined the power-chording of the Berry-Richard school with a ferociously jazzy single-note style and a soaring lyricism reminiscent of Carlos Santana. This is a heady combination, and with Be-Bop Deluxe's mubile, kinetic rhythm section surging behind him, Mr. Nelson hits peaks of intensity and invention that Lynyrd Skynyrd, for all its superior firepower, seems unable to approach. Occasionally Mr. Nelson coasts on flash while preparing for another onslaught of substance, but at the Palladium these moments were few and far between. It is difficult to imagine where Lynyrd Skynyrd can go from here, musically speaking, but Be-Bop's options seem varied, and its future looks bright. ROBERT PALMER

Opera: Sarah Caldwell Stages a Joyful 'Barber'

By PETER G. DAVIS

New York was exposed to the complete Sarah Caldwell experience for the first time last night in the City Opera's new production of 'The Barber of Seville." Miss Caldwell has staged "Ariadne auf Naxos" and "The Young Lord" in the past for the City Opera and she has conducted "La Traviata" at the Met, but for "The Barber" she was undisputed mistress of ceremonies over both the musical and dramatic aspects of the opera.

Essentially this is the same staging that Miss Caldwell devised two seasons ago for her own Opera Company of Boston. It has been moved more or less intact to the State Theater, complete with an exquisite and ingenious revolv-ing jewel-box set by Helen Pond and Herbert Senn, Jan Skalicky's extravagant costumes and the star of the show, Beverly Sills, as Rosina.

Miss Caldwell evidently sees "The Barber" as a kind of animated comic strip, a view not necessarily contradicted by Rossini's effervescent, at times heartlessly brilliant score. Figaro. for example, is costumed as a red and white barber pole, Bartolo carries around more locks and chains than Marley's ghost, while bis jealously guarded ward, Rosina, is literally a bird trapped in a gilded cage equipped with a swinging perch.

Despite the highly spiced visual aspect, this was a considerably restraiged production compared to the gimmickedup "Barbers" one has seen in the past. There was certainly plenty of inventive humor on stage and lots of dashing to and fro, but it all arose naturally from the text and most of Miss Caldwell's ideas were genuinely fresh and amusing. It was one of those rare operatic occasions where sets, costumes and action meshed on nearly every level. Miss Caldwells conducting was no less successful. She directed the score with a light haod, achieving a lovely, transpareot orchestral texture that seemed to breathe naturally along with the singers. The only questionable touch was the frequent use of the harpsichord as a continuo instrument during certain numbers, a practice that went out oearly a century before Rossioi wrote his opera.

Although Miss Sills was the nominal star, the most extraordinary performance came from Donald Gramm as Dr. Bartolo. Mr. Gramm removed all the buffo cliches from the role and presented a richly comic, deftly drawn portrait of a self-important fuddyduddy thwarted at every turo. Vocally, too, Mr. Gramm made everything sound right and he sang the part superbly rather than mugging his way through as so many basses are

variations.

One must accept Miss Sills's current vocal estate on faith these days. There was the usual amount of shrill tone and an excessive beat to the voice, but she acted with charm and a fine sense of comic timing. For the Lesson Scene, Miss Sills had ber cake and ate it too by singing both Rossini's original music followed by Adam's "Ah, vous dirai-je maman"

William Harness found the Count's music a bit more than he could bandle, although he entered into the spirit of the production with a bill. Alan Titus gave an elegant account of the mercurial Figaro, Samuel Ramey as Basilio (lookiog rather like a high priest of Isis gon astray in the wrong opera) applied bis caveroous bass to excellent effect, while Diane Curry as Berta and Nicholas Muni as Ambrogio contributed two clever comic vignettes to the proceedings. On the whole, Miss Caldwell bas given the City Opera a joyful and en-tertaining romp which should provide a great deal of operatic pleasure for some

Cocoa futures prices rose with persistent regularity last week, setting record prices in the process. Observers called it a market "feeding upon itself," with speculators only willing to sell to take profits and later to buy in again. The record price, reached Thursday was $1.27¾ a pound, and on Friday prices soared to $1.282/10. Manufacturers, who apparently have sufficient supplies at least through the end of the year, have been out of the

The market's high prices indicated a tight supply situation and a healthy demand not yet influeoced much by runaway prices. Those on the sidelines wondered just how long the speculative nthusiasm could continue.

A new crop seasoo is under way in Africa, which produces most of the world's cocoa, and from now until early next spring traders, speculators and manufacturers will be watching the weekly reports from Ghana, the largest producer, eveo though they sometimes doubt the figures.

• •. • Each week Ghana's central marketing agency reports the number of tons of cocoa beans farmers bring in carts, frucks and baskets to market. After the first two weeks of the seasoo's reporting periods, total of 39,000 tons was indicated, a little more then a year ago, also a tight crop year. Reports keep coming that the crop is not good.

There is no doubt that Ghana Ni-

United States, the second largest user. If the Russians were in the market, manufacturers in this country were not, according to such observers as. Robert H. Bitter, an analyst and broker for Reynolds Securities, "If reports with last year's production prices could go considerably higher than present record levels," be said.

Despite the record prices, chocolate makers have not announced increases in product prices or decreased the size of bars, as they often do at a time of sharply higher prices. However, Hersbey Foods and M. & M are expected to raise prices this week.

One reason the price increase has not come sooner is the low currect not come sooner is the low current price for sugar. Last week sugar prices dropped to a contract low of 7.5 cents a pound in terms of the nearest delivery. Raw sugar sold at 66 cents a pound during the 1974 shortage. At that time, cocoa was bringing 84 cents a pound. Therefore, sugar has dropped almost 90 percent in price from 1974 levels while cocoa has climbed 50 percent.

Each chocolate maker uses a different recipe but milk chocolate by weight contains about 50 percent sugar 15 percent cocoa butter and 15 to 19 perceot whole milk powder, as well as added flavorings...

The chocolate liquor is produced when deshelled, roasted cocoa beans are ground. Pressure plus heat turns the product into a liquid. If the fat is then essed out of the liquid, the rest is called cocoa powder, a byproduct. The, fat, called cocoa butter, helps thin chocolate.

Soybean Prices Up

Labor strife in the Peruvian anchovy industry last week helped spur higher prices for soybeans and soybean meal in Chicago.

On the Chicago Board of Trade, meal, which closed at a price of $173 a ton the previous week, ended Friday at $186 a ton.

Early last week Peruvian fishermen went out on strike against their Government's plan to denationalize the 600-boat fleet mostly owned by the Government's Pesca-Peru monopoly. Oo Thursday, the Government said it had dismissed 9,000 fishermen who worked or serviced the boats. They would be rehired, a spokesman said, if they agreed to resume fishing and cooperate with the plan. The fishermen apparently feared a reduction in income if private operators took over.

"We've got to get the fleet working." he said, emphasizing the importance to the Peruvian economy, in which anchovies, small fish, rank second only to

The magnificent Mercedes-Benz 450SEL: It's a world unto itself.

With its price of more than $22,000, it's reasonable to expect that everyone -driver and each and every passenger-should enjoy every moment spent in the Mercedes-Benz 450SEL. Everyone does.

Because within its artfully sculpted contours, the 450SEL conceals an extraordinary array of creature comforts. Yet here is one car that appeals as strongly to the intellect as it does to the senses. Read on. Some surprises may be in order.

The Mercedes-Benz 450SEL is the contemporary version of the classic touring car. The automotive embodiment of elegance.

To be sure, it is a driver's automobile, replete with dozens of stunning engineering developments. Most of them are unique to the 450SEL.

But the 450SEL is also a passenger's automobile, in which a host of biotechnological ideas have been beautifully translated into human terms. The result is pleasure...pure pleasure, whether you take the wheel or simply enjoy the ride.

Appeals to the senses

You enter the Mercedes-Benz 450SEL through doors, front or rear, that open a full 36 inches wide. Close the doors and you're wrapped in a sure, secure and satisfyingly luxurious environment. You savor satiny, premium leather-or, if it's more to your taste, rich velour. You settle into wide, anatomically correct seats, firmly sprung, whose individual suspension is actually tuned to the car's own suspension. You notice that all interior surfaces are padded and finished for safety as well as sump-

You defy the elements with a climate control system designed to automatically maintain the precise temperature you prefer at any setting between

65° to 85°. The system also defogs, defrosts, and dehumidifies. Eleven strategically placed and adjustable vents-and front doors that actually "breathe"—assure proper ventilation in every area of the car. You observe the world outside through an expanse of tinted glass. If you are a passenger, unobtrusively sited rear reading lamps let you read or work at night without interfering with the driver's vision. Adjustable stereo speakers bathe you in sound at the touch of a switch. You cruise even the roughest roads with confidence, the result of the 450SEL's synergistic combination of independent suspension, 116.7-inch wheel-base and welded—nor bolted—monocoque construction.

As you ride, you appreciate why 450SEL's must be assembled at so slow a rate. Time is lavished on hundreds of individual hand operations. Human touches, loving attention to detail that makes the 450SEL an automobile few —if any—automobiles in the world can even hope to match.

Appeals to the intellect

The 450SEL comes to you with a complement of safety, performance and comfort features—as standard equipment -that is almost unheard of these days. Your Dealer can give you the details.

The 450SEL is a sensibly complete car. It's fully equipped right from the start, and priced to reflect its essential honesty. What few items of optional equipment you might consider adding have more to do with your own sense of aesthetics, rather than engineering. Even so, the list is startlingly short. It includes such ultra-refined touches as an electric sunroof, heated seats, lightalloy wheels or rear-seat headrests.

Mercedes-Benz has achieved an unparalleled record in this vital test. Based on the average official used car prices over the past five years alone, Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than any other make of luxury car sold in America. Any other make.

Given the extraordinary attributes of the 450SEL, it seems only logical that this car should enjoy remarkable resale value indeed.

HANDLING: A Mercedes-Benz torte fordecades, brought to a new standard of excellence in the 450SEL Touring Sedan.

COMFORT: In engineering, interior dimensions, quality of materials and craftsmanship the 450SEL offers superb comfort for all its SAFETY: Over fifty separate safety dimensions, quality of materials and cratismanship the 450SEL offers superb comfort for all its

The New York Times DIVISIVE PROBLEMS CHALLENGE FUTURE OF COMMON MARKET

Survival is Questioned as Monetary Turbulence, Protectionism and Rivalries Sap Its Energies

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH

PARIS Oct. 24-Like a leaking ship the frail structure of the European Common Market is half submerged by mone-tary turbulence, divisions between its rich and poor member nations and mounting waves of protectionism.

A question now being asked nearly 20 years after it was created by a generation of Europeans that knew two world wars is whether the community can survive as a meaningful force of European and Atlantic cohesiveness, or whether it will get too waterlogged and sink.

The major elements of the current crisis are currency dislocations born of growing economic divergences, a need to increase employment, political resistance in the stronger countries—notably West Germany—to giving much more financial help to poorer neighbors, and what some ana-lysts say is reviving nationalism.

Brussels Atmosphere Is Gloomy

At the Brussels headquarters of the Common Market the atmosphere is particularly gloomy. The Executive Commission, designed by the market's founders as an initiator of policies to bring the member states together, has lost this role, and slumbers as a giant bureaucracy.

"We're going backward to nowhere," one high official commented recently in the commission's glass-walled, starshaped headquarters building.

He and other officials are hoping that a new stimulus for union will come in two years when member countries will hold direct elections for the first time to send delegates to the European Parliameot in Strasbourg.

The European Parliament exists today as one of the institutions of the community, but functions as little more than a debating society. The reason is that deputies are sent by national parliaments and have little political weight.

Jean Monnet, one of those most inrolved in huilding the Common Market in the 1950's, feels that much of the pessimism is exaggerated. "The community has always had its difficulties," Mr. Monnet said in a telephone conversation from his home near Rambouillet south of Paris. "At the moment the problems are jobs and protectionism. But the march toward unity cannot be stopped. In my mind it has to go on."

Further Steps Backward

A top Paris banker agreed with Mr. Monnet. "Europeans might indeed take further steps backward, but in the end we have to stick with the community because if it goes, everything goes."

Next month in The Hague the leaders of the nine market countries are getting together to try to give a new push to unity. But current problems are so techni-cal, complex and controversial that they will not have an easy time.

Monetary turbulence has divided Europe into weak and strong currency zones and compounded problems of making the Common Market simply function as an area of free trade and equal competition.

The greatest worries lie in the agricultural sector, much more important in terms of manpower in Europe than the United States, Farmers on the Continent represent about 12 percent of the working population against less than 5 per cent in the United States. In a country like Ireland the figure is 25 per cent.

Internal Monetary Adjustments When currencies began fluttering in the early 1970's, the community had to make internal monetary adjustments to pre-serve equal competition.

To protect its farmers the community teeps its prices higher than the world level. So that farmers in one part of the community will not have advantages over those elsewhere, the community tries to keep its prices equal. Currency changes destroy this equi-librium. A comtry that devalues gets a price advantage. But it also has to pay higher prices for the food it imports.

To try to prevent this sort of thing happening, the community worked out what has become a Rube Goldberg type of system under which prices were kept Continued on Page 50, Column 5

During the next few days and perhaps for a period of some weeks, however, many observers expect the market to head lower.

"I think we're still in a bull market," says Kevin Bradley, research director for Bache Halsey Stuart, "although I see some consolidation of prices ahead."

Dow Reached 1,014.79

The stock market will be higher three months hence and six months hence. That's the forecast of Leon G. Clearer View Must Wait on Election. Experts Assert

By JOHN H. ALLAN The bond market last week suffered its higgest setback since May as interest rates rose sharply for the first time since

Memorial Day. It was a sweeping move that depressed prices for fixed-income securities and left money market economists wondering whether Oct. 15 might not mark the high point for prices and the low point for interest rates in the current husiness cycle.

Last Friday, there was no clear consensus about the outlook, however, and several dealers and analysts asserted that there would not be any until the outcome of the national election is better under-

The extent of the increase in interest rates was substantial for a single week. Some rates climbed as much as a quarter of a percentage point, a good-sized shift for so short a period.

Mr. Newhouse said he would top the Times Mirror's offer of $40 a share for Booth by $7. Should he fail to get control, Mr. Newhouse promised to pay at least $42 a share for those tendered by stockholders.

Measured Watering Is Found More Economical and Makes Formerly Unusable Land Tillable BY ROBERT LINDSEY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24-Some farmers call it "drip." Others call it "trickle." Others, well, they just call it "spit irri-The terms all apply to a radical change in farming techniques that is spreading in California's rich agribusi-ness industry and beginning to affect farming elsewhere.

By watering crops with carefully measured droplets of water instead of dousing them, many California farmers say they are sharply reducing the amount of water necessary. Moreover, they say, the technique is cutting labor costs, increasing yields of some fruit

High Insider Sales at Continental Oil

By ROBERT METZ

Wall Street was surprised to learn on Thursday that two top officials of on Thursday that two top officials of the Continental Oil Company recently sold substantially more than half of their company shares while a third executive sold nearly half of his holdings. Thereafter the shares drifted lower—possibly in reaction to news of the insider sales. On Friday the shares traded heavily. In all, 117,200 shares changed hands, including a block of 30,000 at 33%, where the stock closed. During the day, Contineotal Oil traded at a 1976 low of 33½.

Concentrated selling by insiders is frequently cited by outsiders as a sufficient reason to also sell, and Continental Oil has certainly given investors of that persuasion good reason to act.

of that persuasion good reason to act.

The latest sales, at prices ranging from 37 to 38, were made by John E. Kircher, deputy chairman of the board of directors, who disposed of 40,000 ahares and retained 12,920; Wayne E. Glenn, vice chairman, who sold 30,000 shares and retained 25,684 and by C. Howard Hardesty, vice chairmao, who sold 20,000 shares and kept 25,452.

Just a few weeks earlier, Howard W. Blauvelt, chairman of the board, sold 18,800 shares, reducing his holdings to 24,078. J. E. Finley, an executive vice president, sold 18,834 shares, in connection with his early retirement a month ago, reducing his portion to 6,000 chares.

In the September-October period there had been four other sales by executives of at least 1,000 shares each, all at prices of 37 to 391/4. There were three insider sales in June one in July and ooe in August and nn insider recorded purchases back that far. Efforts to reach the executives in-

Efforts to reach the executives involved in the sales were unsuccessful for the most part. A company spokesman said that Mr. Hardesty, Mr. Glenn and Mr. Blauvelt were all in Europe, examining Continental Oil's operations in the North Sea.

Mr. Kircher said that he had sold his shares to cover tax liabilities arising from the exercising of stock oning from the exercising of stock op-

A Continental Oil lawyer explained that any paper profits an insider ex-perienced under the company's nonqualified notion plan upon exercise was subject to immediate withholding ings last year.

"In order to pay the withholding tax, the executive usually has to borrow the money," the lawyers said. "At some point, shares may be sold to pay

He added that option stock could not be sold fur six months after exercise and said that Conoco had had a public offering during the holding period of some officials. Officers do not ordinarily sell ahares during public of-fering periods, he added, and thus the opportunity to sell mature options had in some cases just recently presented itself.

Continental Oil is a mammoth integrated petroleum and coal company ranking 16th in sales among United States industrial concerns and eighth among domestically based petroleum corporations. In 1975, sales totaled $7.5 billion. The Value Line Investment Survey lists Continental Oil's normal price-earnings ratio as 12.5. At Friday'a close the multiple was 8.

Two stock analysis were asked to comment oo Continental Oil's prospects in the years ahead. Both asked to speak off the record. One noted that a major brokerage house had put out a sell recommendation on Continental Oil recently and added that the com-pany's coal nperations were unlikely

The first analyst said that he saw little "downside risk" at current prices and with the stock selling at about seven times earnings. "Maybe mest of the selling is out of the way," he added.

However, a Wali Streeter, who gauges companies on the basis of current yield, noted that Continental Oil produced "a modest 3½ percent."

Linking the bood market's behevior to the latest economic news last week required a certain inconsistency of attention for the market seemed to emphasize only what it wanted to. A lower inflation rate, for example, was disregarded and lower durable good orders failed to stimulate the market much. Both economic developments might logically have been cited, as reasons for the credit merkets to move higher in price.

Interest rates had worked their lower since late spring and prices had risen. These swings doubtless encouraged traders and short-term investors to nail down some profits, and they also discouraged portfolio managers from buying the oew lower-yielding securities being marketed. These factors, too, helped cause the bood market's decline last week.

Will the bond market slump continue or will the treod toward lower interest rates—so procounced all year except for a six-week period from mid-April until late May—reassert itself?

Forecast of Future for 6 Major Fields

By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY

Experts in the six major advertising media gathered on Friday at the Biltmore Hotel to forecast the future, at least as far as 1980. As you might ex-pect, rising costs, especially in TV, were high on the agenda.

The moderator, Archa Knowlton, director of media services of General Foods, set the tone of the Media Decisions seminar by noting that "a typical 1976 media plan will lose over 40 percent of its advertising weight by 1979 a brand that is advertising 32 weeks a year in 1976 could be down to 20 weeks by 1979."

If media prices continue to rise at predicted levels and outpace sales growth on established brands, then either advertisers will have their profit margins eroded or will be forced to cut back on advertising, he said. This, he said, "could eventually affect the quality of commercially financed media's editorial product."

Hugh Brooks, manager of advertising services of Brown & Williamson Tobacco, took on the subject of out-of-home media, primarily billboards, called cutdom called outdoor.

called outdoor.

Using a popular phrase of the day he said the medium "is in the process of beiog born again." and that the industry operators with new research are attracting new advertisiog categories. He did not think prices would rise inordinately.

The industry had two problem areas, he said, "the competition for land use in high propulation areas and the visual in high population areas and the visual pollution freaks." Another problem, he noted, is that outdoor is the most difficult medium to buy for a national Radio, said Joseph W. Ostrow, senior vice president-director of communications of Young & Rubicam, is the most selective of media and its ability to use a "rifle shot" approach to andiences is also one of its greatest potentials.

He forecast greater use of radio with television for the synergistic value, more use of stereo sound broadcasting with advertisers adapting their mesages to that system, more tailoring of radio advertising copy to program en-vironment, and a greater use of radio by direct response companies.

The business press predicted modest gains in the first and second quarters of this year, reported Michael A. Walsh, senior vice president of Aitken-Kynett, but "actually volume went through the roof. It looks like it will be their stroogest year in the last 10."

However, he said, because production costs are continuing to escalate, he sees some of the fringe publications dying off, leaving the big publishers fighting for the advertising

Most husiness publications have controlled (free) circulations with advertisers carrying the eotire load. Mr. Walsh said this will have to change because advertisers "have reached the point of saturation."

"smart publishers" will have to "tap the readers" even though sub-scription solicitation is costly and controlled circulation is frequeotly needed to adequately cover certain markets.

But for the business press, Mr. Walsh said. "the future is better and brighter than ever.'

The predictions for newspapers came from Dewey Yeager, ad manager of Nestle. He forecast a decrease in the ratio of editorial to advertising because of rising newsprint costs, more special interest sections, greater use of graphics and shorter stories to appeal to young conreaders, and greater use of geographical and, perhaps, demographic editions.

The bot potato—television—was dropped in the lap of Jim Barker, vice president-director of consumer marketing of NBI Communications, the inhouse agency of BankAmericard.

As far as cetwork goes, he said that prices will increase into 1978 and 1979 "but at a more reasonable rate." In those two years he sees spot prices dropping substantially.

He said the prices increases were caused by a false demand created by advertisers who have not thoroughly examined alternative media. He said he hegan pulling his own company out of spot commercials last year and would Of Gifts, Pancakes and Frozen Batter

There is some account-movemeot news to report on this morning and two-thirds of it has to do with pancakes. Curious? Read oo.

James Neal Harvey Inc., an ad agency, reports that it has been named to do the advertished.

been named to do the advertising for Spencer Gifts, the Arlantic City direct mail operation that specializes in giftwares and housewares. The account, with billings of $2 million, according to the agency, has been at Fairfax Inc.

Now let's flip to the griddle. International House of Pancakes North Hollowood Calif. cakes, North Hollywood, Calif., which has over 450 franchised restaurants across the land, is moving its account to Young & Rubicam/West from the Los Angeles office of David W. Evans Inc. One report put the billings at:$1.5 million.

And finally, Krown Foods, the first company to make a major introduction of frozen pancake batter, has been ac-quired by the Kitchens of Sara Lee. That means that the advertising for Kwik Make, which had been done by Case & Mc-Grath, will move into Sara Lee's shop, Benton & Bowles.

"The key to past, present and future success of consumer magazines is their appeal to special interests," said David Kimble, a vice president-management supervisor at Grey Advertising. The future holds even more special interest publications, he promised By 1980, he forecast, while ad rates have climebd 28 percent, circulations will be up 2

What is needed, he said, is for more magazines to develop psychological pro-files of their readers to help those advertisers who already have such profiles of their customers.

All of the foregoing pearls, and more, will be cast before the readers of Media Decision's December (10th anniversary) issue.

Needham Net Rises 18.2%

Needham, Harper & Steers reported that its third-quarter revenues were up 12 perceot from the same period last year to $8 million while its net income was up 15.2 percent to $117,000, or 14 cents a soare, compared with 12 cents. For the nine mooths, reveoues were up 17.9 perceo; to $25.7 million and the net was up 326.3 percent to $1.1 million, or $1.38 per share, compared with 32 cents.

The fourth quarter, the agency re-ports, is not expected to be as good as last year's because of "some higherthan-usual retirement provisioos" and a shift in "revenue patterns relative to operating expeoses."

Peter Heering and Tequila

One of the classic ways of iocreasing the sales of an alcoholic beverage is to invent and popularize a drink in which it is used. That's what John Ruddy, marketing director of W. A. Taylor & Company, (with the help of J. Walter Thompson) wants to do for Peler Heering, the cherry liquor formerly called Cherry Heering.

To get it out of the hands of the old folks, and into the hands of young swingers, a drink has been inveoted called Tijuana Cherry, featuring the liquor, tequila and lemon juice. And then the suggestion is "If you can shake it, do it. Then over the rocks, and pull up your socks." Fourteen magazines, most with a youthful orientation are on the media schedule for use during the December-

Labor: Union Push at J. P. Stevens Is Sparking Retaliatory Campaign

and the union is about to start before an N.L.R.B. administrative law judge in Roanoke Rapids. It is based on a board complaint accusing the company of having eogaged since 1963 in unfair labor practices of "unprecedented fla-grancy and magnitude."

The proposed remedies would go well beyond the sanctions that have proved futile in the past. But neither organized labor nor Southern industry believes that the crucial verdict in the Stevens campaign will ever be reo-dered by the labor board or by the Federal courts.

Leaders on both sides view the impending boycott campaign as the make-or-break test oot only for unionnation at Stevens but also for A.F.L. C.LO. hopes of large-scale enrollment of workers in all the Sunbelt states of the South and Southwest, where economic growth is most rapid and union

Because the stakes are so high, the federation has assured the textile union that the A.F.L.-C.LO. field staff will be given a priority assignment to connerate in the Stevens drive as soon as it gets through with its current priority—the mobilization of union support for the election of Jimmy Carter. In labor's eyes, the two campaigns are not unrelated. Union chiefs have made clear their expectation that a Presidential victory for the former Governor would itself help open the way for a union victory at Stevens as part of a general transformation of

Southern attitudes in a progressive

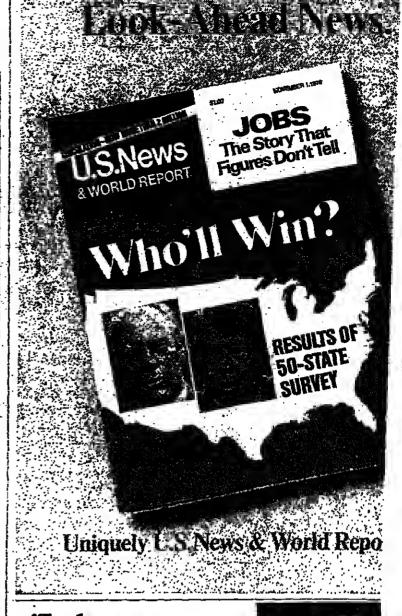

The textile industry, which has repulsed a succession of much-publicized Operation Dixie" drives since the 1930's, finds nothing progressive in the idea that it should welcome unions now. "Uoions are obsolete," said Robert E. Coleman, president of the South Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association. "If they make headway, it is ooly because management is oot doing its job of treating workers with fair-ness and dignity."

Channeling Is Urged For Worker Participation

A prediction that some form of worker participation in activities tradi-tionally reserved to management would be commooplace in Americao industry was put before New York personnel executives last week by Paul F. Shaw, vice president for labor relations of the Chase Manhattan Bank.

He advised his colleagues oot to laugh off the prospect but to address themselves to ideas for channeling the participatory urge into constructive

"Remember," Mr. Shaw cautioned, "that management didn't believe the Wagner Act [which management considered lopsided in favor of unions] would ever happen or that it would be upheld by the Supreme Court-but it did happen and it was upheld. And it was 12 long and bard years before some of the abuses of that act could be corrected by the Taft-Hartley-amendments. And another 12 years before further corrections were made by the Landrum-Griffin amendments."

"In the news business, facts are a dime a dozen. What is important is the weight of the facts-the balance and perspective."

TIME B. The compleat business publication.

It's axiomatic that no businessman is all business. But no business publication accommodates the businessman's variety of interests quite so well as TIME B.

TIME B is, for one thing, TIME Magazine, a thorough cross section of one week in the world's life. So it satisfies the businessman's appetite for contact with the world of art, humanities and science.

TIME B also satisfies a businessman's need to know what's worth knowing on the overall business scene.

Finally, TIME B gratifies a business-man's impulse to put his advertising dollars where they'll do the most good. While competitive business media often include 'foreign' and 'miscellaneous' business people, TIME B circulates solely in the U.S., matching the census breakout of U.S. business. And all TIME B readers are qualified by both job title and industry. So advertising in TIME B reaches business people exclusively, at every level of management.

EXPERTS CONFIDENT OF MARKET UPTURN

as the market went down. The Dow tumbled to a closing low at 932.35 on Oct. 12. After a feeble attempt at a rally, the industrial average was shaken anew late last week, when it closed at 938.75.

Meanwhile, fundamental changes have been taking place in the perception of the business cycle, corporate profits and the rate of inflation-key factors that have an impact on stock prices.

The economic growth rate has been cut in half from its exceptionally high level in the opening 1976 quarter, corporate profit gains in coming months are being shaved for many companies and the rate of inflation has slowed encouragingly on an annualized basis to less than 5 percent at the latest reading.

Cortaciding with the market's slide in early autumn was the growing conviction of most Wall Screens that Jimmy Carter loomed increasingly as the coming occupant of the White House.

"A Carter victory is already in the market" was a saying repeated with in-creasing frequency in the financial

Single Overriding Worry

But the stock market's single overriding worry, it turns out, was not Jimmy Carter but a more fundamental concern over a slowing-and perhaps souring-domestic economy.

"In July, investors were worried about inflation and higher interest rates in 1977, slong with the possibility that a Carter victory could mean big Government spending plans that would lead to wage and price controls," explains Harold B. Ehrlich, president of the investment counseling firm of Bernstein-Macaulay. Then a change in sentiment began to take hold in late September. "Now the market is worried about the and the prospect of disinflation—or the unwinding of the serious inflation rate of recent years," Mr. Ehrlich observes. It is possible to pinpoint the critical date for Wall Street's new perception of the business world, namely Sept. 21, when the Government reported that its index of leading economic indicators declined 1.5 percent in August to register its first drop in 18 months—a period that spans the recovery from the nation's worst recession since the 1930's.

. Mr. Bradiey of Bache Halsey Stuart, who expects a relatively weak economy for the next several months, sees this silver lining, however-"a tax cut is in the cards for either victorious party."

Meanwhile technical analysts who peer at stock charts turned bearish early this month when the Dow industrials fell below 960—"like warm milk going through a baby," one broker said—to violate a so-called "support level."

"I think the market will go down to the 900-910 area before it turn around," observes Newton D. Zinder of E. F. Hutton. "I expect a Carter victory, with perhaps a final knee-jerk selling wave when that happens. But he will stimulate the economy-and the stock market"

'Drip' Irrigation Reducing Costs For California Farming Industry

that is working on the technology and is oow experimenting with advanced techniques using water emission systems buried in root zones...

Cost $800 to $1,200 an Acre He estimated there were now about 80,000 acres of agricultural land in California equipped with the systems, mostly for citrus, strawberries, tomatoes, wine and table grapes and other crops that tend to have a high profit per nore. The profit yield of wheat and other grains generally is too low to make the approach profitable for these crops, he said. Typically, it costs $800 to $1,200 an acre to install this system. In addition to California, Mr. Davis estimated systems were in use in about 80,000 acres in other states, and perhaps as much land is under drip irrigation in foreign countries. Israel has been a leader in the technology. And recently, United States companies have begun to export the technique.

Drip irrigation systems are being installed this year on hundreds of acres of sugar cane and other crops land in Hawaii, where, industry specialists say. the prime concern is not saving water. reducing labor requirements through nutomation of farming. "I think that everywhere labor prob-lems have farmers concerned, and they're turning to this because of labor coosiderations." Wendell Boice, an executive of Chapin Watermatics of Watertown, N.Y., a major supplier of drip irrigation hardware, said.

Water Runoff No Problem

Charles Sanders of Ag-Water, a major retailer of irrigation equipment in the bountiful San Joaquin Valley north of

"I'd say it's made the same kind of strides in two or three years that it took sprinklers 20 years to make. "Besides conserving water, there are a lot of other advantages," Mr. Sanders continued. 'Because you just water your plants and not between them, you don't get as many weeds. You don't have to use as much fertilizer because it goes right on the plant; you can control the growth of a plant, and a lot of your marginal land becomes available. We've got avocado trees growing on 40-to 60-degree slopes; you don't have to worry about water runoff when you use n flow application in these

Near Watsonville in northern California, one farmer claims to have in-creased the yield of strawberries by 30 percent while reducing water con-sumption 55 percent and labor costs by more than half.

Richard Levering, an executive of the Roberts Companies, which has extensive agricultural holdings and manufactures irrigatioo equipment in the San Diego area, said that on a one-milesquare complex of Valencia orange groves owned by the concern yields, in boxes of fruit produced per acre have averaged 60 percent higher than in comparable orchards, while water consumption is 30 to 40 percent less. His concern prefers the term "trickle" to "drip."

One problem is the clogging of the small apertures in the irrigation lines by particles of dirt or other material in the water. Industry specialists say the problem is being solved by the use of filtration systems, although Mr. Levering says it is still a problem for many farmers. He said his company decided to deal with the problem by chaoging from a "drip" system to a gentle spray, using watering devices it called "spitters."

Gordon Fraser, president of the International Drip Irrigation Association, ian organization of manufacturers in the field, estimated the annual market for such equipment now totaled more

Nationally, 45 percent in a New York Times/CBS poll earlier this month favored locreased defense spending, while 31 percent favored reductions.

The problems of President Ford and Senator Suckley in New York appear to be directly related to domestic issues.

The incumbents are apparently on the "wroog" side of the New York City aid issues as far as a majority of New York.

Numbers Are Simila-

Two years after the event, New Yorkers opposed the pardon by a 52-to-40 count. The figure in a national poll last month was 49-to-42. Two years ago, in a New York Times survey of New York just after the pardon, 61 percent appears to be one of obvious interest to New Yorkers. Even among Buckley votors, 38 percent thought the Senator bad done "too little" for the city.

But the project is forced to ramble on to a ridiculous length, and the padding becomes embarrassingly noticeable. On a cross-country trip, for instance, Miss Earhart runs out of gas and is forced to land in a rural village. Subsequent scenes with the locals are completely pointless.

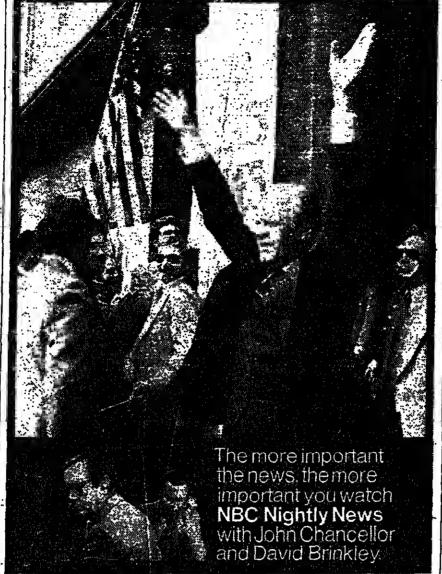

A great deal of time is also devoted to the flying scenes, but they are done so superbly, in reproductions of the period planes, that no serious complaints will be offered here. The photography director is Ted Voightlander. One minor reservation: the music of David Shire is a bit too cheerfully innocuous sinking into the cheerfully innocuous, sinking into the kind of coyness that would be more suitable to illustrating "The Little Prince." The director of "Amelia Earhart" is George Schaefer...

What's the latest on the Squeeze?
All three networks, according to the Wall Street Journal, are "virtually
'sold out' of prime evening time through next year's third quarter, at prices 20% to 30% over last year."

Prime time, daytime or fringe, it's a runaway seller's market.

Clearly, things aren't getting any better.

That's why Newsweek has put together this handy TV Squeeze Kit. It's filled with facts and figures and useful information that can help you not only survive in the TV Squeeze, but actually come out ahead of the game.

Here's what it includes:

1. The TV Squeeze. How to beat it.

This comprehensive guide, based on Newsweek's new multi-media presentation, follows television from its infancy up through the current years. You'll see how the Squeeze happened. You'll learn what sensible alternatives exist.

2. The Magazine/Television Mix in a New Perspective.

This brochure discusses how print and television complement each other. Drawing on the recent W. R. Simmons study, "Media Imperatives," it shows how magazines and TV, when used in combination, can give you more GRPs for your money while decreasing your cost per thousand impressions.

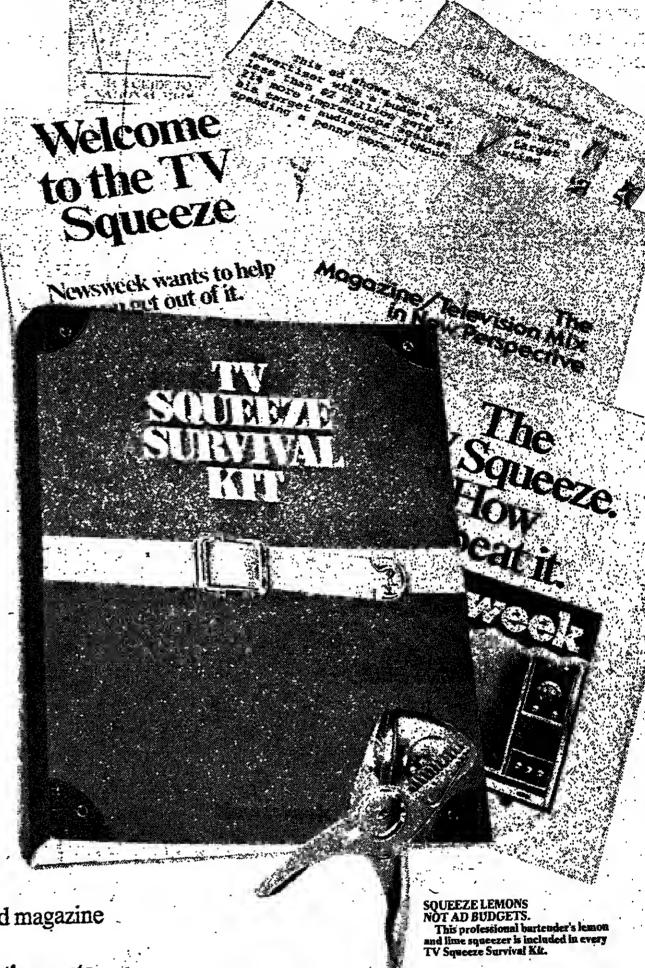

3. A Guide to National Media.

This pocket guide puts television and magazine costs and figures right at your fingertips.

4. Reprints of selected Newsweek advertisements.

In these informative ads, Newsweek analyzes the actual media schedules of companies that advertise heavily in television, and shows how adding more magazines can help increase GRPs without an increase in budget.

Add Newsweek. Beat the Squeeze.

5. Your official Newsweek lemon (or lime) squee

Perfect for taking out your TV Squeeze frustrations.

The TV Squeeze Survival Kit is yours, absolutive—compliments of Newsweek. Write us on you business letterhead, or just fill out the coupon and mail it today. It's your first step towards beating the Squeeze.
